A CELEBRATION OF

Scholarship

SEPTEMBER 15, 2023
FACULTY CONFERENCE CENTER

GW | LAW

DEAR COLLEAGUES,

I am thrilled to present this bibliography that recognizes and celebrates the GW Law faculty's immense scholarly impact. It assembles the research and scholarship that the George Washington University Law School faculty has published during the first three years of my deanship. Our mission statement begins, "The George Washington University Law School is a global law school that exists to make an impact on the law through the leadership of our diverse faculty." This bibliography is evidence of the truth of that statement.

Our faculty's research is regularly cited by judges and justices including those on the United States Supreme Court. The impact of our research is nationally recognized by rankings organizations. For example, we are listed 18th by Leiter Score Ranking for the Top Law School Faculties in the United States, 12th in the country for scholarly impact for faculty under age 60.

Over the past three years, I have seen that our faculty has intentionally built the greatness of our law school's reputation on its scholarly impact. Nowhere has this been more clearly communicated to me than during our annual appointments process. The care and attention our faculty gives to reading and analyzing the work of prospective new colleagues speaks volumes.

Of course, scholarship is but one of the two primary missions that we serve. The other is our shared pedagogical commitment to educate and help shape the values of the next generation of legal professionals. We strive to equip them to lead society in solving its most pressing problems at every level, in every community, in every corner of the globe where the rule of law operates.

This celebration of scholarship recognizes one of the most important, singular activities that we law professors uniquely engage in - creating, analyzing, and disseminating new knowledge in the form of legal scholarship.

Celebrating legal scholarship is especially important at this moment in our school's and indeed society's history. GW Law is privileged this year to welcome the largest cohort of new scholars who have joined this law school in any single year in recent history. These new colleagues will contribute to strengthening the community of scholars who are already here at GW Law. Moreover, our scholarship, disseminated from the oldest law school in the nation's capital, influences law and policymakers around the world who seek to solve the existential problems and heal the bitter divides of our day. This bibliography underscores that we are - a community of outstanding, diverse, productive, and impactful legal scholars.

With Great gratitude and Pride,

DAYNA BOWEN MATTHEW
