This Business & Legal Toolkit for Returning Citizen Entrepreneurs is part of a multi-year action research project of the GW Law School Small Business & Community Economic Development Clinic (Clinic).<sup>1</sup> The Clinic provides free legal services to carefully selected small and microbusinesses, non-profit organizations, artists, and social entrepreneurs.

Student attorneys, enrolled in the clinic for academic credit, help clients with a broad range of legal issues such as creating corporations and limited liability companies, getting business licenses and permits, writing and reviewing contracts, and helping with tax, copyright and trademark matters. Applicants must have a written business plan or business canvas map prior to applying for free legal help. This Toolkit aims to inspire, educate, and empower returning citizens to leverage their entrepreneurial gifts.

This Toolkit, designed to be a basic resource for returning citizen entrepreneurs and aspiring entrepreneurs, begins with inspiring stories of local successful returning citizen entrepreneurs who leveraged resources to launch their own enterprises. These citizens have turned their passions, skills, hobbies and concern for social issues into community-based businesses. It lists and describes organizations that support returning citizen entrepreneurs. Finally, it provides general information about being an entrepreneur—including business, tax, legal and other resources. By providing the right resources, support, and some inspiring readings, we hope to help the next wave of returning citizen entrepreneurs to turn their ideas into action.

SUPPORTING ENTREPRENEURSHIP FOR RETURNING CITIZENS

The Landscape for Returning Citizens?

The general public may not always be aware that D.C. has so many returning citizens. The D.C. Mayor’s Office on Returning Citizen Affairs estimates that at least 8,000 return home each year.<sup>2</sup> The D.C. Code defines returning citizens as “persons who are residents of the District who were previously incarcerated,”<sup>3</sup> a terminology, designed to be non-stigmatizing in the aftermath of punishments and debts paid to society. A vibrant entrepreneurial ecosystem embraces the need for returning citizens to integrate into their communities, get on with their lives, and become productive members of society.

The world that returning citizens confront, however, is besieged by a rapidly changing economy, low wage jobs, high rates of joblessness, a decline in middle class jobs, limited opportunities for economic mobility,<sup>4</sup> and the rise of automation and technology. The businesses that once offered decent paying jobs and an opportunity for mobility<sup>5</sup> for people with limited skills have largely moved overseas, and a significant share of new jobs created in recent years offer extremely low wages, no benefits and little opportunity for upward mobility.<sup>6</sup>

While full-time gainful employment is still the aim for returning citizens, in this economic environment, those who previously shunned the idea of starting a business in favor of the safer route of getting a job might view entrepreneurship in a whole new light. The term “necessity entrepreneurship” has been used to describe this form of self-employment where entrepreneurship is an essential option and often the most expedient way to earn a living.

Why is Returning Citizen Entrepreneurship Critical?

On the national landscape, the U.S. Department of Justice made history in October 2015 by announcing the largest discharge of inmates from federal prisons in America. Prompted by an effort to reduce prison overcrowding and provide much needed relief to drug offenders who have been incarcerated over the past four decades, the government released thousands of individuals from federal prisons across the United States.<sup>7</sup> Among them are D.C. residents made up of men and women from various backgrounds who deserve a second chance at life.

Concerns about the over-incarceration of black and brown men and women and the American prison state are well documented. Sixty thousand people in the nation's capital, or 10 percent of D.C. area residents, have criminal records, and each year more than 8,000 individuals return to D.C. from penal institutions.<sup>8</sup> The largest percentage of returning citizens is African-American men twenty-one to thirty years of age. An October 2014 D.C. Department of Corrections report found that 37 percent of young men in custody had no education, high school diploma, or GED.

Entrepreneurship requires hard work, drive, and determination. Returning citizen entrepreneurs have been successful when turning their legal skills or talents into businesses.

Businesses Started by D.C. Area Returning Citizens

CLEAN DECISIONS<sup>9</sup>

Clean Decisions, a commercial restaurant cleaning service gives returning citizens the chance to work, grow, and leave with a plan for success. It offers them jobs, a way to build their resumes, and their careers. The program is unique in that returning citizens hired by the company are not expected to stay with it because the business model rests on the idea of cycling returning citizens in, teaching them practical skills, and cycling them out with better prospects than when they arrived.

By hiring a diligent and dependable work force from the returning citizens' community, the company has acquired clients such as District Taco, Union Kitchen and One Eight Distilling Company. Ultimately, Clean Decisions offers returning citizens an opportunity to succeed while offering a service to other businesses.

FLIKSHOP<sup>10</sup>

Flikshop helps families of prisoners easily send photo postcards to their incarcerated loved ones through a mobile app. Marcus Bullock, its CEO and founder, learned first-hand while incarcerated that mail time is the best time of the day for prisoners. The business partners with prisoner advocacy groups to organize mailing campaigns.

Marcus also designed The Flikshop School of Business, Entrepreneurship and Coding Training Center which offers a 16-week Entrepreneurship Launch-Pad, a supplemental workforce and apprenticeship program.<sup>11</sup>

MISSION: LAUNCH, INC.<sup>12</sup>

Mission: Launch, co-founded by a directly impacted mother-daughter team, has advocated for civic technology and inclusive entrepreneurship since its founding in 2012. The organization led The Rebuilding Reentry Coalition, which brought together directly impacted individuals, corporations, government agencies and non-profits with the civic coding community through hackathons and collaborative workshops.

Several open-source tools were established focused on record sealing/expungement and services coordination leading to national attention for D.C.'s reentry community. An MSNBC television crew attended the Rebuilding Reentry DC Hackathon and the co-founders, Teresa Hodge and Laurin (Hodge) Leonard, were named a "Foot Soldier of the Week" (11/9/2015) on the Melissa Harris-Perry show with Ari Melber.

By way of their business and leadership development accelerator for entrepreneurs living with criminal convictions, LaunchPad, provides technical assistance, shared workspace and leadership development training. LaunchPad was seeded by a local philanthropic partner and the U.S. Small Business Administration. LaunchPad has resulted in the formation of worker owned cooperatives, sole proprietorships and limited liability companies throughout Maryland and Washington, D.C.

TIGHT SHIFT LABORING COOPERATIVE<sup>13</sup>

Tightshift Laboring Cooperative is a growing worker-owned laboring business in D.C. providing a range of high quality laboring services including moving, hauling, cleaning, or landscaping. The organization is also D.C.'s first worker-owned cooperative business founded by returning citizens. Tightshift ensures a thorough, timely, and affordable service "wrapped all in one tight shift." It aims to promote worker freedom and provide services with integrity and love for the people, community, and environment.

D.C. Area Organizations Supporting Returning Citizens

ONE DC: ORGANIZING NEIGHBORHOOD EQUITY<sup>14</sup>

ONE DC's mission is to exercise political strength to create and preserve racial and economic equity in Shaw and the District. The organization strives to create a community in D.C. that is equitable for all. In response to unemployment in D.C., it partnered with Goodwill of Greater Washington and the Washington Marriott Marquis to train D.C. residents in the restaurant industry.

It continues to advocate for good jobs recognizing the problem of chronic Black unemployment. ONE DC Black Workers Center is a member-led platform aimed at building racial and economic justice through education and worker-owned alternatives like worker-owned cooperatives, collectives and businesses.

BACK ON MY FEET<sup>15</sup>

Back on My Feet (BoMF) revolutionizes the way society approaches homelessness. BoMF recruits members at homeless and residential facilities ("resident members") around the country and begins with members' commitment to an early morning run three days a week. BoMF welcomes non-resident members and volunteers to join in daily runs to motivate, and be motivated by resident participants.

Resident-members with 90% attendance earn the opportunity to move into the second phase of the program called "Next Steps," which provides educational support, job training programs, employment partnership referrals and housing resources.<sup>16</sup> BoMF aims to restore confidence, strength and self-esteem enabling participants to tackle the road ahead and move toward jobs, homes and new lives.

COOPERATION DC<sup>17</sup>

Cooperation DC, a project of ONE DC, helps organize and advance worker-owned cooperatives in the District. The organization hosts a series of events and trainings related to worker cooperatives and had served as the catalyst for establishing the infrastructure needed to provide technical assistance and support to emerging cooperatives that are led and owned by communities of color.

One of the organization's key goals is establishing an alternative local economy in D.C. that is self-sustaining. Cooperation DC works closely with the ONE DC Black Workers Center to conduct outreach, popular education, and organize workers interested in developing their own worker coops.

DC CENTRAL KITCHEN<sup>18</sup>

DC Central Kitchen has specialized in equipping adults with histories of incarceration, addiction, homelessness, and trauma with the hands-on training and support they need to begin a culinary career, since 1989. The organization offers a 14-week, intensive training program which provides culinary arts education, career readiness training, and real-world internships, at no-cost. It has helped 90% of its graduates find jobs after program completion.

The Culinary Job Training program is certified by the Office of the State Superintendent of Education (OSSE) and recognized by the American Culinary Federation Education Foundation as a Quality Program. Graduates work across Washington, D.C.'s, thriving culinary industry in top restaurants, large hotels, corporate cafeterias, and in hospitals, schools, and universities.

FREE MINDS BOOK CLUB & WRITING WORKSHOP<sup>19</sup>

Free Minds uses books, creative writing, and community support to empower incarcerated and formerly incarcerated youths and adults to transform their lives. Free Minds provides book clubs in the D.C. jail, correspondence-based programming in federal prisons, and literacy and job readiness services for returning citizens. An award winning re-entry program, Free Minds helps young men and women see their potential and achieve new educational and career goals, including entrepreneurship for those uniquely suited to it.

LIFE ASSET INC.<sup>20</sup>

Life Asset aims to “help alleviate poverty in Washington, D.C., through affordable financial products, services, and education, thereby promoting self-help and self-respect and expanding social and economic opportunities for lower income residents.” It provides ongoing financial and business training to low-income entrepreneurs. Modeled on the world renowned Grameen Bank, founded by economist and Nobel Peace Prize winner, Muhammad Yunus, Life Asset has trained more than 1,500 entrepreneurs and made 215 business loans averaging $1,050 each.

Life Asset provides a peer group training model to help people get out of bad debt, save, invest, and give back to the community. Its “Debtors Anonymous” (modeled after Alcoholics Anonymous), helps improve practical steps, financial steps, and behavioral changes.

PROJECT JUMPSTART<sup>21</sup>

Project JumpStart provides an 87-hour pre-apprenticeship training program with rigorous classroom and hands-on training to Baltimore City and Prince George’s County residents annually. Its mission is to “train low-income city residents to enter the building trades on a construction career track that will help them advance beyond the entry-level.” The organization has more than 650 graduates who are rebuilding local communities, by foraging the workforce.

Non-D.C. Area Organizations Supporting Entrepreneurship for Returning Citizens

DEFY VENTURES<sup>22</sup> (NEW YORK, SAN FRANCISCO, LOS ANGELES, SAN DIEGO, AND OMAHA)

Defy Ventures helps former drug dealers and gang leaders by recognizing they can become successful, legal entrepreneurs. The organization serves returning citizens by offering intensive leadership development with “Shark Tank-style business plan competitions,” mentoring, financial investment, and startup guidance. It strives to provide returning citizens with a life-giving, authentic community along with strong relationships with executive volunteers.

LAST MILE<sup>23</sup> (CALIFORNIA)

The Last Mile (TLM) is a technology accelerator that prepares incarcerated individuals for successful reentry through business and technology training. The program allows incarcerated persons to pitch business ideas to investors before their release from prison and gain a broader context for the possibilities for returning citizens.

RISING TIDE CAPITAL<sup>24</sup> (NEW JERSEY)

Rising Tide Capital (RTC) serves struggling individuals and communities to help build “strong businesses which transform lives, strengthen families, and build sustainable communities.” RTC has a 12-week business academy that takes participants through the phases of starting and successfully managing a business. In 2009, former President Obama applauded RTC’s success.<sup>25</sup>

Surround Yourself with Inspiration: Readings and Podcasts

STARTING YOUR OWN BUSINESS IN TEN STEPS

‘Every time I see a problem, I create a business to solve it’

— Muhammad Yunus

For inspiration, about the type of business you want to start, consider the things you enjoy doing, and look around your community for problems that need to be solved. Please see below for the ten steps for starting a business as you research your idea and consider what tools and resources you will need to make your idea into a real business, and what challenges you might face. In the next section, you will also find an infographic explaining each step.

1. Create Your One-Page Business Plan: A business plan is a roadmap for business success. It can also help investors, partners, and suppliers to understand your business.
2. Get Business Assistance and Training: Participate in training and counseling services to assist you with your business plan:
3. Weigh Pros and Cons of a Physical Location: Plan and research before choosing a physical business location.
4. Fund your business: Find funding for your business. You may be able to find it from a micro lender.
5. Select the Best Legal Structure for Your Business: Decide what type of business you want to start. The appropriate legal entity will be governed by state law and influenced by the many legal and tax considerations of the business. See the list of legal clinics that can help after you have a business plan.
6. Legally Structure Your Business: You may have to file several documents like Articles of Organization, for an LLC.
7. Register for State and Local Taxes: File federal taxes (with the IRS), state taxes and other local taxes. If you are starting a 501(c) nonprofit, you will need to file a 1023 form with the IRS to become tax-exempt.

8. Obtain Business Licenses and Permits: You will likely need to decide on a business entity before getting business licenses or permits.
9. Understand Employer Responsibilities: Familiarize yourself with key federal and state regulations before starting the hiring process.
10. Open for Business: (1) Pursue Partnerships and Workforce (2) Protect Your Brand (3) Consider Taxes: Be sure to keep up with your business filings and your taxes.

CREATING YOUR ONE-PAGE BUSINESS PLAN

A business plan is a clear and comprehensive description of your business that helps lenders or investors, partners, and others understand how it will make money, and how investors can expect to be repaid. Six of the critical components of a business plan are listed below.

1. The Big Picture/Executive Summary: This section identifies the type of business you have, who your clients are, how you will make money and the services you provide and for whom.
2. Targeted Audience and Impacts/Business Operations: In business you generally focus on filling a need, solving a problem, or improving someone's life.
3. Profit/Financials. To be successful in business, you must make a profit. Making a profit means your revenues are greater than your expenses.
4. Marketing Strategies. People need to know about you and your product or service.
5. Climbing the Mountain/Management. You cannot do everything yourself. Outsource tasks or projects where you are weak or get help with those tasks that can be accomplished better by someone else.
6. Achieving Goals and Successes. Make sure you know when you achieve your goals, when to re-evaluate them, and to celebrate successes.

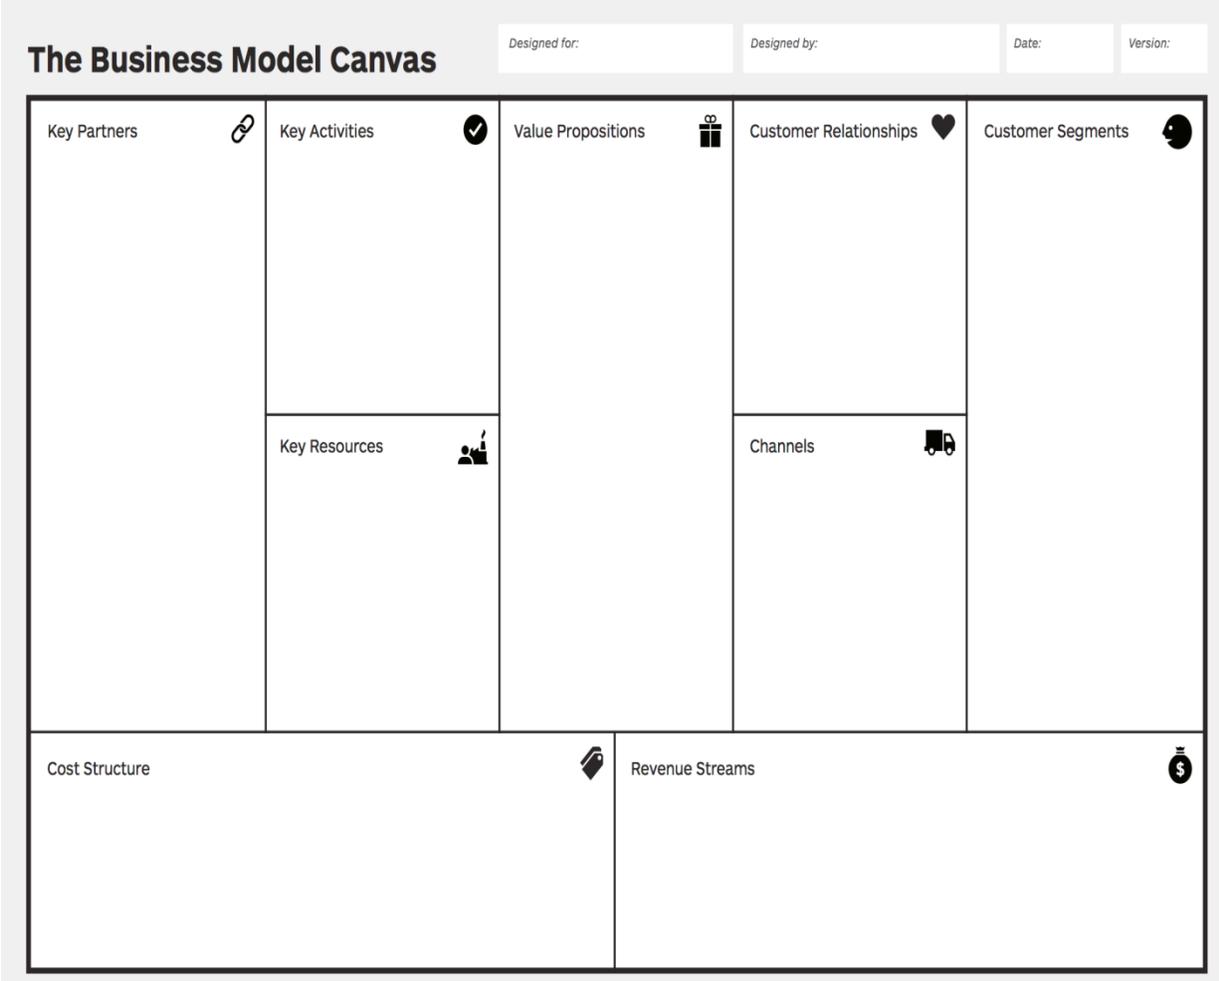

While an extensive business plan<sup>30</sup> may be useful to the business as it grows and develops moving forward, a one page document, using the critical questions below is often enough to get your business up and running. Please take a moment to complete the following worksheet to get started with your one-page business plan worksheet and business canvas map below:

FINDING THE RIGHT FINANCING FOR YOUR BUSINESS

After your business plan, the next step is to determine whether you may need to secure financing or develop a strategic partnership. Do not be discouraged if any of these resources do not pan out, because the funding process is different for each business. For example, if you do not have the personal savings, there are several resources for you to consider.

The available resources include government funding, as well as private funding sources. The following general resources are a great place to start your funding search.

Primary Options for Returning Citizens

- Community Development Financial Institutions (CDFI)s are private financial institutions that provide responsible, affordable loans to help low-income and disadvantaged people and communities by financing community businesses such as small businesses, microenterprises, nonprofit organizations, and other community entities. There are 4 categories of CDFIs: banks, credit unions, loan funds, and venture capital funds. These CDFIs make loans or investments to community-based small businesses at affordable rates. D.C. CDFIs made over 41,000 loans or investments totaling over $3 billion, financed over 12,000 small businesses and supported over 25,000 housing units. Accepted applicants enter a six-month business incubator program while receiving a Project Empowerment stipend. Eligible enrollees may also be able to participate in a matched-saving account program through the Capital Area Asset Builders. The project is supported by the Office of the Deputy Mayor for Greater Economic Opportunity, D.C. Mayor's Office of Returning Citizen Affairs and the Court Services and Offender Supervision Agency, it's non-profit service provider, Changing Perceptions, and many other community stakeholders from across the District.
The Aspire to Entrepreneurship program has, from its inception in 2016, been stakeholder driven. Partner and community stakeholders developed three central principles that drive the program implementation and design. Those who do not enter the six-month Aspire program are still eligible for free and ongoing, one-on-one direct technical assistance. Please contact Derrick Colbert at Derrick.Colbert2@dc.gov.<sup>32</sup>

Additional Options for Returning Citizens

- Grants.gov. This is a search engine that allows users to search and apply for federal grants by using keywords and other more specific criteria. These services are available at the following link: <http://www.grants.gov>.
- Business USA's Access to Financing Wizard. This resource is an online questionnaire tool designed to identify potential funding opportunities for your business's specific needs. You can access it by visiting the link listed below where you will need to follow the questionnaire prompts and, answer the questions as accurately as possible. This resource provides results for possible grants in just a few moments! The Access to Financing Wizard is available at the following link: <http://business.usa.gov/access-financing>.
- Grants Information Resource Center (GIRC). The D.C. Office of Partnerships and Grant Services houses the GIRC, which provides one-on-one technical assistance to D.C. community and faith-based organizations and nonprofits in identifying competitive grant funding and other resources. The GIRC offers computer stations with access to grant subscription data services. New clients may schedule a one-on-one appointment. More information on GIRC's services and registration instructions are available at the following link: <http://opgs.dc.gov/service/grants-information-resource-center-girc>.
- Grants Information Data System (GIDS). GIDS is a database of current city, federal, and foundation grant opportunities available to D.C.-area nonprofits and community-based organizations. The system allows viewers to see grant listings or perform searches based on grant title, grantor type, issue area, or grant ID. You can consult the GIDS search engine at the following link: <http://app.opgd.dc.gov/grantautomation/grantfinder.asp>.

For minority-owned businesses

- The Minority Business Development Agency (MBDA). The MBDA provides resources to assist minority business owners to find business loans and grants and supports local minority business centers that provide financial counseling and financial assistance to minority-owned businesses. More information is available at the following link: <http://www.mbda.gov>.
- The National Minority Supplier Development Council (NMDC). The NMDC that connects large companies with minority-owned businesses and vendors. It also oversees the Business Consortium Fund, which provides commercial loans and lines of credit to certified minority businesses. More information is available at the following link: <http://www.nmsdc.org>.

Government Funding

Both the federal and D.C. governments have programs to promote funding sources for small businesses. Please consult the resources below to see if any of these programs could be the right fit for your business.

- United States Small Business Administration (SBA). If you own a for-profit business, explore the SBA's Microloan Program.<sup>33</sup> The SBA's Microloan Program provides loans up to $50K to help small for-profit businesses and certain not-for-profit childcare centers get started and expand. The average microloan is about $13K. The SBA gives funds to SBA-approved intermediary lenders (non-profit community-based organizations with experience in lending, management, and technical assistance). These intermediary lenders administer microloans to eligible borrowers. Because each intermediary has its own lending and credit requirements, you should identify specific lenders in your area. To identify specific lenders, consult the "SBA Partner Identification & Management System" at the following link: https://www.sba.gov/sites/default/files/articles/micro\_lenderrpt\_160111.cfm\_.pdf. **Note SBA now makes business loans to returning citizens.*
- United States Department of the Treasury—Small Business Lending Fund (SBLF). SBLF is a dedicated fund designed to provide capital to qualified community banks and community development loan funds to encourage small business lending. Treasury investments are provided to community banks and community development loan funds. Small businesses can go to one of the 3,000 participating locations across 47 states and the District of Columbia to apply for funding. To identify a participating institution, consult the "Map of Participating Lending Institutions" at the following link: <https://www.treasury.gov/resource-center/sb-programs/Pages/sblf-map.aspx>
- D.C. Department of Small and Local Business Development (DSLBD). Administers Great Streets Grants, competitive grants of up to $50K to qualified small business owners who wish to improve their business property in certain D.C. corridors. Interested business owners must submit online applications. Be sure to check the Request for Applications for eligibility requirements and submission instructions. Consult the Request for Applications and Application at the following link: <http://greatstreets.dc.gov/page/small-business-business-grants>
- State Small Business Credit Initiative. As a participant in the State Small Business Credit Initiative, D.C. will use federal funds for programs that leverage private lending to help finance small businesses and manufacturers that are creditworthy, but do not meet other loan requirements. D.C.'s Small Business Credit Initiative incorporates several programs:
  - The D.C. Collateral Support Program provides collateral support for qualified small business borrowers who are unable to meet the lender's collateral requirements.
  - The D.C. Loan Participation Program provides loan support for qualified small business borrowers who are unable to meet the lender's capital requirements or the lending institution's debt service coverage ratio.
  - More information on the above programs is available at the following link: <http://disb.dc.gov/service/small-business-resources>

Private Funding

If your small business is more mature, you may want to consider seeking private funding. Please consult the resources below for funding opportunities that could be the right fit for your business.

- Small Business Investment Companies (SBICs). SBICs are privately managed for-profit investment funds that use privately raised funds and guaranteed SBA loans to provide long-term loans and equity investments to qualifying small businesses.
- Is your business eligible for SBIC financing? Consult these 3 sources to search for active SBICs:
  - SBA Directory—<https://www.sba.gov/content/sbic-directory>
  - Small Business Investor Alliance—<http://www.sbia.org>
  - National Association of Investment—<http://naicpe.com>

Non-Profit Specific Funding

- If you have a non-profit organization, you may not be eligible for some of the for-profit funding opportunities listed above. Please consult the nonprofit-specific resources below to see if any of these funding opportunities could be the right fit for your nonprofit organization.

Fiscal Sponsorship

- A fiscal sponsorship arrangement is a way for organizations that do not yet have 501(c)(3) non-profit tax-exempt status to attract donors by using an already existing 501(c)(3) as an administrative sponsor for the cause. A fiscal sponsor is a nonprofit organization that provides fiduciary oversight, financial management, and other administrative services to charitable projects that do not yet have 501(c)(3) status. Donations made from individuals to the charitable project essentially flow through the fiscal sponsor, allowing the donors to treat their donations as tax deductible. To identify potential fiscal sponsors, consult the fiscal sponsor directory at the following link:
<http://www.fiscalsponsordirectory.org>

Crowdfunding

- Crowdfunding for nonprofits is a way to raise money, usually through an online platform, from individuals who simply wish to donate to and support the cause of the charitable project or nonprofit organization. Users can create a profile on nonprofit-specific sites, such as Global Giving (<https://www.globalgiving.org/>), explaining their mission and charitable goals. Individuals can then choose to make donations to the cause through the site. Informative PowerPoint presentations created by the Office of Partnerships and Grant Services outlines useful tips and best practices for crowdfunding on Global Giving. The slides are available at the following link:
