6362-11 Adjudicatory Criminal Procedure

Prof. Frampton

Required:

- Dressler, Thomas III & Medwed. Criminal Procedure: Principles, Policies, and Perspectives. (8th ed) West Academic Publishing (2023). ISBN: 978-1647087722

Or

- Dressler, Thomas III & Medwed. Criminal Procedure: Prosecuting Crime. (8th ed) West Academic Publishing (2023) ISBN: 978-1685619572.

explanatory note for students: The casebook exists in a "full" version (called "Criminal Procedure: Principles, Policies, and Perspectives") and the "half" version (called "Prosecuting Crime"). The full version covers all the material you might expect to find in a criminal procedure class covering "Investigations" plus everything we'd cover in a class covering "Adjudication" (i.e., the class you signed up for), whereas the "half" version is limited to just the adjudication materials. So, the half version must be half the price, right? Hahaha, no, because the casebook industry is. It's barely cheaper. My advice then, if you think you might end up doing something criminal law-related in your career, is to spring for the more expensive full version if you can afford it and it's close in price; it'll be helpful to have on your shelf. But you absolutely DO NOT need it for this class, and you SHOULD^N'T get it if this is going to be your last encounter with CrimPro (and/or you already bought a book that covers Criminal Investigations material). Also, I'll be using the 8th edition, but you can absolutely get away with using the 7th for the adjudication half of the course. Please note, though, that the pagination will be off if you're using the 7th edition, and there may be a few times throughout the semester where you're going to have to borrow a friend's (or use the library's reserve copies) if you go this route.
