ACADEMIC APPOINTMENTS

George Washington University Law School, Washington, D.C.

Dean and Harold H. Greene Professor of Law

August 2020 to present

- Reappointed for a second term to serve as the Law School's chief academic and administrative officer by the George Washington University Board of Trustees, to advance the school's reputation for scholarly importance, pedagogical rigor, and inclusive excellence in a community that uniquely prepares students for life-long careers that help shape solutions to the pressing challenges of our times.
- Work with the University's vice president of development to attract external funds to the Law School.
- Supervise and develop all school academic and administrative resources including instructional and research programs, faculty and teaching staff, physical facilities, and finances.
- Oversee financial management of the Law School under hybrid RCM budget model to deliver superior academic program and all student services through Law School's departments of admissions; career development; communications and marketing; development; events; graduate and online education; library; registration and records; and student services.
- Prepare annual and long-term budgets, to set tuition and enrollment targets (with university approval), grow annual revenues, diversify revenue streams, control expenditures, develop policies, and manage all the financial resources of the Law School within the allocations and guidelines of the Board of Trustees.
- Oversee instructional and research programs for 1,800 JD and non-JD students; 125 full-time and 501 part-time teaching faculty; 159 staff members
- Manage the physical facilities of the Law School's six buildings.

Major Accomplishments

- Honors: Elected Member, National Academy of Medicine (October 2024) and American Council on Education Fellow (2024-2025) Placement: Northeastern University Office of the President.
- Philanthropy: During the first five years of my deanship, the Law School has enjoyed record-breaking attainment. Raised over $80 million, a five-fold increase over the school's three year "run rate" before I joined GW Law. This includes the first and largest named professorship in the school's history.

- Law and Technology: Launched new GW Intellectual Property and Technology Law Center, a $22 million research center featuring three new endowed professorships, a new Artificial Intelligence, Data Privacy, and Cybersecurity Law curriculum, new online academic Journal of Law and Technology (JOLT), a new Intellectual Property Clinic, and a series of conferences and speakers resulting in GW Law's Cybersecurity Law Program now ranked #1 nationwide.
- Experiential Education: Led team to establish seven new legal clinics to give students live-client representation experience, including fully endowed student legal clinic for intellectual property and technology law, new community economic development clinic, and new medical-legal partnership to advance national health policy in Washington, D.C. Oversaw thirty percent increase in Field Placement program where 500 students annually receive course credit for working in government and non-profit organizations throughout Washington, D.C.
- Interdisciplinary Research, Teaching, and Service: Annually co-teach Public Health Law, Ethics, and Policy course with professor of social psychology at GW Law; Launched fifth ongoing medical-legal partnership of my career with schools of medicine and public health faculty.
- Strategic Plan: Led GW Law's School's first successful, school-wide strategic planning process resulting in a nearly unanimous faculty vote to adopt and implement a 5-year strategic plan and vision statement based on engagement of over 150 student, faculty, staff, and alumni stakeholders.
- Faculty Hires: Recruited and hired 29 new full-time Law School faculty, including 12 tenure-track doctrinal (research) and 2 tenure-track clinical (research) faculty; 13 legal research and writing (teaching) faculty, and two Professors of Practice. Established four new fully endowed professorships.
- Financial Management: Managed enrollments, tuition rate, expenses, and revenue sources to produce annually increasing net operating margins including during global pandemic. Instituted Law School's first departmental budget accountability system.
- GWU Institute for Socioeconomic Opportunity: Together with 23 colleagues from 9 colleges across the GWU campus, founded and chartered, George Washington University Equity Institute. The GWU Equity Institute is a university-wide, interdisciplinary research center whose vision is to support the teachers and scholars who partner with communities around the world to apply the knowledge and resources of a premiere research university to eradicate inequality. GWU Equity Institute modeled after University of Virginia Equity Center (co-founded 2019) and Colorado Health Equity Project (co-founded 2012).

Scholarship and Teaching Interests: I study the impact of inequality on population health outcomes. My scholarship is grounded in sociology and social psychology and explores conceptual frameworks of dehumanization that help explain contemporary and historic discrimination. I apply mixed quantitative and qualitative methods to examine inequality's adverse social and economic consequences. I integrate social science tools with constitutional and civil rights law to examine evidence-based interventions that can affect structural inequality. My teaching focuses similarly on Constitutional, Public Health, Social Science, and Civil Rights Law.
