The Law School Bulletin indicates that certain seminars and courses will cover “selected topics … to be announced at the time of registration.” The following paragraphs describe the coverage of seminars and courses of this type that will be offered in the Fall 2019 Semester. Please see the Law School Bulletin for the description of other seminars and courses. Enrollment in each seminar is limited. Enrollment in each course may be limited.

6264-10 Securities Law Seminar: Enforcement of the Federal Securities Law (2) Sturc
The Securities and Exchange Commission is the largest and most important agency that enforces financial laws and regulations. Its enforcement policies and practices have a profound effect on corporate culture, capital formation, and financial markets. Understanding how the SEC investigates possible violations and enforces its laws is important for lawyers engaged in complex civil and criminal litigation and for corporate lawyers counseling public companies and financial institutions. This course supplements the corporations and securities law courses and applies principles developed in the civil procedure, criminal procedure, and corporations classes. It goes into depth concerning frequent subjects of enforcement actions, enforcement processes and remedies, and legal, tactical and ethical considerations facing lawyers who practice before the SEC. A former associate director of the SEC’s Division of Enforcement leads the seminar. The course is aimed at students interested in corporate law and governance, litigation, and white-collar investigations and litigation. (Research paper and class participation)

6351-11 Reading Group: Constitutional Issue in the Trump Administration (1) Fontana
The reading group will consider past and pending disputes surrounding fundamental constitutional issues raised during the Trump Administration. Each class will revolve around one major constitutional issue implicated by the Trump Administration. The only prerequisite is Constitutional Law I. This course is graded on a CR/NC basis. Class attendance and participation is mandatory, and every student will be expected to write a paper each week responding to the reading. (Writing assignments)

6351-12 Reading Group: Celebrities and Wrongs against Women (1) Kohn
This reading group will explore domestic violence committed by and against the rich and famous as a vehicle to explore both the exceptionalism and universality celebrity domestic violence. Sessions will also explore the legacy of the #MeToo movement and wrongs committed against women in the workplace by high profile executives. Enrollment is limited. This course is graded on a CR/NC basis and will meet 6-7 times per semester for two hours. (Writing assignments)

6351-13 Reading Group: Taming the Megabanks: Why We Need a New Glass-Steagall Act (1) Wilmarth
This course will review my forthcoming book on the history of the Glass-Steagall Act of 1933, its repeal in 1999, and the reasons for adopting a new Glass-Steagall Act. The book discusses the emergence of universal banks (banks that can engage in securities activities) in the early 20th century and their role in promoting an unsustainable boom during the 1920s, which led to the Great Depression and the enactment of Glass-Steagall. The book then considers the 20-year effort by federal regulators and the financial industry to undermine Glass-Steagall before Congress finally repealed the statute in 1999. The book describes the rise of a second generation of universal banks, which financed the subprime mortgage boom during the 2000s and triggered the financial crisis of 2007-09. The book analyzes post-crisis reforms (including the Dodd-Frank Act), which have not required banks to give up their activities in the capital markets. The book explains why post-crisis reforms will not prevent another systemic financial crisis and calls for the enactment of a new Glass-Steagall Act.
6351-14 Reading Group: Quest for Financial Stability (1) Pam, Hoenig
This reading group will provide a high-level overview of the issue of financial stability in the U.S., with a particular emphasis on the institutional dimension of economic, financial and monetary phenomena. Co-instructor Tom Hoenig’s long experience as a senior bank supervisor, regulator, policymaker and as the former Vice President of the FDIC, will provide a valuable element of practicality and realism. (Writing assignments)

6351-15 Reading Group: Blockchain Law & Policy (1) Pepe
This course is designed to provide an overview of blockchain law and technology. On the technology side, students will obtain a basic understanding of cryptocurrencies and tokens, blockchain consensus mechanisms, current and anticipated use cases, and significant projects in the blockchain space today. Building off this learning, students will gain exposure to the current state of the laws implicated by blockchain projects, including the securities laws, commodities laws, tax laws, and other selected federal and state laws. No technical background is required for this course. (Writing assignments)

6379-20 Criminal Law & Procedure Seminar: Wrongful Convictions (2) Tafti, Walters
Exonerations of the innocent force our criminal justice system to confront new and unsettling realities. They remind us that that system is only as good as the people and practices inhabiting it. They raise serious questions about its truthseeking abilities. And they compel us to ask what went wrong in these cases, what compensation is owed, and what reforms are due. This seminar will consider these questions. It will review the causes of wrongful convictions, and the jurisprudence that follows, with each session devoted to an intensive study of a particular facet of the topic. Students will be assigned each week to lead class discussions criticizing or defending particular judicial opinions or scholarly materials. The papers in this class are not of sufficient length to fulfill the legal writing requirement. (Class participation and research paper)

6399-10 Constitutional Law Seminar: Leading Cases in Context (2) Maggs, Justice Thomas
Opinions in leading Supreme Court cases usually reveal only part of a complex story. Although they discuss the facts immediately leading to the litigation, they often do not fully expose the motivations of the litigants or the social and political context of legal controversies. The opinions also cannot describe the reactions to the Court's decisions or the decisions’ subsequent influence. Discovery of additional facts about the context of a particular case often yields a deeper or different understanding of the Supreme Court’s actions. In this seminar, students will observe this phenomenon by studying a more complete story of a number of leading cases than is usually presented in Constitutional Law courses. The seminar will culminate with each student writing and presenting a thorough history of a Supreme Court decision not discussed in class. Prerequisites: Law 6214 (Constitutional Law) and Law 6380 (Constitutional Law II). (Class participation, presentation, and research paper)

6405-20 Selected Topics in Advanced Antitrust Law: Antitrust in the Health Care Sector (2) Leibenluft, Oliver
This seminar will address the application of antitrust law in the health care sector, including the antitrust analysis of professional codes of ethics, provider networks and managed care contracting, ACOs, joint ventures, hospital and health plan mergers, the conduct of dominant firms, conduct that can deter generic drug entry, and exemptions which may shield certain conduct from antitrust scrutiny. We will discuss the policy and practical issues that arise in applying the antitrust laws to a heavily regulated industry in which typical market forces often do not appear to apply. Students will be expected to take part in several “role-playing” exercises during the course of the semester that will emphasize “real-life” issues that arise in the practice of health antitrust law. The course is aimed at students who intend to practice antitrust law, or who will work in health law and wish to understand how antitrust applies to the health care sector.
Prerequisites: Law 6402 (Antitrust Law) or Law 6410 (Health Care Law) or permission of the instructor. (Examination, presentation, and writing assignments)

6411-10 Health Care Law Seminar: Traumatic Brain Injury (2) Kaplen
This seminar will examine the issues that confront attorneys in their representation of an individual with a traumatic brain injury, both in and out of the courtroom. The intertwined medical and legal issues related to brain injury and its consequences will also be studied. Topics relating to public perception of brain injury and implications for the legal profession, necessary areas of proof including the use of demonstrative evidence, expert witnesses, challenges to the admission of expert testimony, and trial practice skills in both the prosecution and defense will be discussed. Accessing government benefits and the legal implications of the concussion crisis in amateur and professional sports are other included topics. (Research paper and class participation)

6441-10 Energy Law Seminar: Energy Commodities (2) Malyshev, Waldman
This course will focus on the connections between the trading in physical commodity markets and the related financial derivatives markets. The students will learn the fundamentals of US federal commodity regulations and enforcement and will discuss policy and innovative trends in the industry (e.g., the use of blockchain and cryptocurrencies for the physical commodity trading). Through a series of case studies, the students will become familiarized with the industry practices affecting power, natural gas and crude oil and how these commodities trade as forwards, swaps, options and futures. The lectures will cover: (1) overview of derivatives and energy commodity trading generally; (2) the concepts of hedging and speculation; (3) the evolution of the Commodity Exchange Act of 1936 (CEA); (4) the jurisdiction of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC), the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), including areas of overlap and difference among the three agencies; (5) application of commodity trading and derivatives statutes and regulations to new products, such as bitcoin, blockchain and other FinTech innovations; (6) analysis of energy commodity contracts, documentation and legal drafting; (7) enforcement actions relating to physical commodities, case studies; (8) registration and regulation of market participants, such as brokers, hedge fund operators, investment advisers, swap dealers and energy commodity traders; (9) administrative and injunctive enforcement powers involving violations of the CEA and other regulations; and (10) international aspects of commodity markets. (Research paper and class participation)

6497-10 Selected Topics in IP Law: Trade Secrets (2) Pade, Patel
With the increasing importance of technology and the ease with which information can be accessed and shared, managing incoming and outgoing trade-secret risks has become one of the most important legal issues facing corporations today—demonstrated by new domestic and international legislation on this very subject. The law has to strike a balance between encouraging and protecting commercial investments in research and other endeavors, and preserving an individual’s right to change employment or to compete directly against a former employer. This course will examine the theory, policy, and practice of trade secrets and explore what a trade secret is and how it differs from other types of property protection. We will discuss trade-secret laws’ interrelationships with other areas of the law, including corporate management of information, employee mobility, and economic espionage. We will look at ways in which an organization can identify and protect its trade secrets and manage risk associated with exposure to others’ trade secrets. Finally, the course will analyze civil and criminal disputes involving trade secrets, particularly methods of and challenges involved in litigating such cases, through an in-depth review of state and federal trade secret statutes and case law, both within the U.S. and abroad. (Examination)

6513-20 Selected Topics in Government Contracts: Negotiations (2) Vadiee
This course provides experiential learning for students planning a career in government contracts law, whether at a private law firm, for the government, or within a private company. The instruction will focus on negotiation considerations and methods used during formation and administration of government contracts. Each class will require students to participate in discussion and simulations of different negotiations that take place in government contracts, while considering the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR), the government contract lifecycle, and the constraints and objectives of the government, prime contractors, and subcontractors. The course will provide simulation fact patterns which students will be expected to review and form negotiation positions and plans thereon according to their assigned roles. For certain classes, judges and practitioners with experience in the topic of discussion will be invited to participate in the simulations and present their input and experience.

No prerequisite courses required but at least one of the following is recommended: Law 6500 (Government Contracts), Law 6502 (Formation of Government Contracts), and/or Law 6503 (Performance of Government Contracts). (Skills/E)

6562-10 Public International Law Seminar: Arms Control (2) Carnahan, Poore (TBA)
This seminar will examine the underlying rationale behind various international arms control, counterterrorism and non-proliferation agreements to which the United States is a party, both strategic and conventional. Students will study the negotiations which brought these agreements into force, review their major provisions, and discuss issues involving the implementation of and compliance with these agreements. Federal implementing legislation will also be addressed, with emphasis on the Atomic Energy Act of 1954. Prerequisite or concurrent registration: Law 6520 (International Law). (Research paper and class participation)

6565-10 Comparative Law Seminar: Criminal Justice (3) Lerner, R.
This seminar compares criminal justice in common law countries and civil law countries. It explores the profound differences between adversarial and inquisitorial systems. Understanding these differences is becoming increasingly important because of international tribunals and transnational prosecutions. Key differences include the role of judges, jurors, police, prosecutors, and defense counsel; and methods of investigation, interrogation, charging, plea-bargaining, conduct of trial, sentencing, appeal, and imprisonment. Civil law countries examined include France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Russia, and Japan; common law countries include the U.S., U.K., Canada, and Australia. The seminar also examines differences among common law countries, efforts by civil law countries to adopt adversarial features, and transnational criminal law enforcement. (Research paper)

6869-11 Selected Topics in National Security Law: Problems Trying Terrorists (2) Breinholt
The course is intended to be a deep-dive into the art and mechanics of trial advocacy in the specific context of U.S. terrorism prosecutions. It is a combination of criminal law, evidence, national security law, and trial advocacy. The non-exclusive emphasis will be on the “material support to terrorists” crimes, which are the most common choice for U.S. terrorism prosecutors. Prerequisite: Law 6230 (Evidence). (Writing assignments)

6869-12 Selected Topics in National Security Law: Counterintelligence (2) Kedian
This course is designed to provide an overview of counterintelligence aspects of national security law. Topics covered will include traditional espionage, foreign agent activity, leaks and mishandling of classified information, nation state cyber crimes (including economic espionage), export control violations, court-authorized foreign intelligence surveillance, and the handling of classified information in criminal cases in Article III courts via the Classified Information Procedures Act. There are no prerequisites, though general knowledge of and interest in criminal law will be useful. (Writing assignments)

6869-13 Selected Topics in National Security Law: Law of Secrecy (2) McClanahan
This course will examine the intricate legal framework by which the U.S. government designates information as classified or otherwise related to national security, controls access to that information, and allows its disclosure. The course will begin with discussing the constitutional arguments surrounding these matters, largely focusing on separation of powers concerns. Then the phenomenon of leaks and the criminal prohibitions on such disclosures will be examined. The course will then consider the law governing situations in which classified information is implicated in litigation, focusing primarily on the state secrets privilege in civil cases and the Classified Information Procedures Act in criminal cases. Next the class will examine the system in which decisions are made to grant or deny access to classified information through the use of security clearances and related determinations. The final part of the course will address the legal framework for the classification and declassification of information, including a discussion of the prepublication review regime. (Writing assignments, role playing exercise, class participation)

6869-21 Selected Topics in National Security Law: Technology Foundations for Cybersecurity (1) Clark, Jackson
This course examines basic technical concepts relevant to the law. It is designed as a foundational course that will introduce students to key terms and concepts related to cybersecurity. The course will provide a basic understanding of cybersecurity topics that will empower students to more easily identify, understand, and analyze associated legal issues. This course is recommended for students who have little to no technical knowledge but intend to enroll in cyber-related courses as part of their academic curriculum. Students who have prior technical knowledge should not enroll in this course. (This course is graded CR/NC) (Mid-term examination and examination)

6869-22 Selected Topics in National Security Law: Transnational Security (2) Stigall
This course is designed to provide an overview of key transnational threats (including terrorism and transnational organized crime) and the legal frameworks used by state actors to counter them. Students will learn about the key actors and institutions used for international cooperation and the challenges faced in pursuing evidence and fugitives across national boundaries. (Examination, class presentation, class participation)

This seminar provides students with the knowledge and skills necessary to become effective practitioners in the fields of government oversight and internal investigations and examines the role of the Department of Homeland Security, Office of Inspector General in protecting national security. The seminar focuses heavily on Inspector General legal authorities, the report writing process, and effective interviewing techniques. This seminar also examines oversight mechanisms within the Department of Justice, the Department of Defense, and the Office of the Director of National Intelligence. (Research paper and class participation)

6639-25 Law Students in Court — Criminal Division (6) D. Johnson
This is a clinical program in pre-trial and trial litigation that offers students the opportunity to develop skills as litigators while representing persons in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia. Students who participate in the criminal division represent persons charged with misdemeanor offenses, but also may handle some juvenile cases. Under the supervision of clinical instructors, students are responsible for all aspects of litigation: interviewing clients and witnesses, conducting investigations, preparing pleadings, engaging in plea bargaining, and conducting all motions hearings and trials pursuant to the Superior Court’s student practice rule. Students must participate in the program for two consecutive semesters for a total of 12 credits. This is a one semester clinic. Weekly clinic classes are held in the evening. Students must have one day per week available for court appearances and plan to devote approximately 24 hours to the clinic each week. Prerequisite: Law 6230 (Evidence), 6360 (Criminal Procedure). Students may enroll concurrently in this course and Law 6668 (Field Placement) only with permission of both instructors. This course is graded CR/NC for the fall semester and with letter grades for the spring semester. (Skills/E)

This course will be offered for 3 credits in the Fall 2019 semester.

6652-11 Legal Drafting (Transactional) (2 or 3) Berl
This course focuses on drafting documents used in transactions by or with corporations. With each document students will discuss the business context giving rise to the need for that document and prepare a draft to memorialize the transaction. This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Fall 2019 semester.

6652-12 Legal Drafting (Civil Litigation) (2 or 3) Lynch
This course focuses on drafting in the practice of federal civil litigation, including a complaint, answer, interrogatories, request for documents, response, motion to compel discovery, and motion for summary judgment. The goal is for students to gain confidence in their lawyering and litigation strategy skills. This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Fall 2019 semester.

6652-21 Legal Drafting (Litigation) (2 or 3) Goodman
This course is directed to students gaining a more “real world” sense of the practice of federal civil litigation. Students are given a detailed fact scenario that they work on throughout the semester. The fact scenario is a federal litigation matter where students represent the plaintiff and/or the defendant(s) at various points during the semester. Given the fact scenario, the substantive course work product focuses on drafting in the practice of federal civil litigation, including a complaint, answer, interrogatories, request for production of documents, appropriate responses, motions to compel discovery, and motions for summary judgment. A student who completes this course should have a knowledge and understanding of the federal civil litigation process, including an understanding of the rules, standards, and best practices. Students should also develop confidence in lawyering and litigation skills, including an appreciation that advocacy in all legal drafting (including themes and story-telling) is the foundation of the entire civil litigation process. This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Fall 2019 semester.

6652-22 Legal Drafting (Transactional) (2 or 3) Villa
Students learn the fundamental skills necessary to draft transactional and litigation documents which are most commonly used by in-house attorneys. This will include mastering basic drafting principles, discussing the business context giving rise to the need for particular documents, and developing the strategy for structuring and negotiating contracts. Students also will get practical application in the full cycle of the drafting process for transactional documents, such as contracts, licenses, and other agreements. For several in-class assignments, students will be asked to participate in an oral exercise that helps form the basis of the written assignment. This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Fall 2019 semester.
6652-23 Legal Drafting (Transactional) (2 or 3) McIlmail
This course will focus on the fundamentals of contract drafting. As explained by the author of the text the class will use, Drafting Contracts, students will learn to think critically about the law and the transaction they are memorializing, apply rules of good writing, use contract concepts to reflect the parties’ deal accurately, draft and recognize nuances in language that change the deal, and add value to a deal by discerning and resolving business issues. This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Fall 2019 semester.
