LAW

JURIS DOCTOR DEGREE

THE GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY LAW SCHOOL
WASHINGTON, D.C.

2022-23

DC's oldest law school, still ahead of its time

For more than 150 years, GW Law students have studied law in the center of the most dynamic legal and policy activity in the United States: Washington, D.C.

“ I’ve met the movers and shakers here at GW. I can say, yes, I’ve met Jeff Bezos’s team, along with the people shifting the paradigm in Silicon Valley. They’ve been so friendly. They’ve given me their cell phone numbers, and I’ve gotten first-person advice from experts. ”

LAILA GHAURI, JD '18
FOUNDER, ANTARES LAW FIRM

Our graduates make history

GW Law has an impressive record of educating forward-thinking leaders. By 1895, our graduates had already written the patents for Bell's telephone, Mergenthaler's linotype machine, and Eastman's roll film camera.

Today, GW Law prepares students with the theoretical and practical knowledge to view the law in an increasingly global context. With an extensive curriculum, a faculty of well-respected scholars and practitioners, high-quality externship opportunities in the nation's capital, robust mentorship programs, and an emphasis on professionalism and career development, we assist students in exploring the law in depth and finding their own place within it.

At GW Law, we offer each student a team of professors, counselors, colleagues, and mentors dedicated to helping that student create a pathway to a successful career. That is the GW Law Experience.

“ The number of opportunities to excel at GW hits you from Day One. The flexibility of the curriculum allows you to take advantage of hands-on externships and classes taught by adjuncts so you graduate with real-world connections and experience. And because you’re a GW student, you have a strong, connected alumni community that respects one another. ”

NICOLAS SABET, JD '18
ASSOCIATE, COOLEY LLP

It's all about who we know.

DC's best legal minds

Our professors argue before the Supreme Court, testify on Capitol Hill, and teach at GW Law. Our professors are not only scholars, but that they engage in shaping the practice and evolution of the law. That experience and access benefits our students.

In addition, our D.C. location allows us to draw from the leading legal practitioners to round out our adjunct faculty. Leading practitioners from the State Department, top think tanks, and local and federal courts, bring real-world experience to our classrooms as adjunct professors.

An Extensive Curriculum

GW Law offers one of the most extensive course catalogs among American law schools. You can choose from more than 275 elective courses focused in 18 program areas, some of which offer more than 60 courses.

“ The Inns of Court programming is so valuable. It helps to reinforce practical matters like how to talk to attorneys and interact with clients and colleagues. It helps you focus on your development as a professional. ”

A Community of Colleagues

At GW Law, we encourage students to examine their interests before exploring the law in depth to find their individual paths toward professional satisfaction. As 1Ls, students enter cohorts that we call the Inns of Court. Each Inn cohort offers a sense of community, along with enrichment programs designed to enhance the law school experience and support students in determining and pursuing their individual career paths. Through formal and informal mentorships with career counselors, faculty, upper-level students, and alumni in Inns of Court programming and beyond, we equip students with the resources to plan the careers best suited to them. Because we support their varied explorations, our students discover a culture of collaboration among their classmates. For instance, it is not uncommon for our students to share class notes or prep together for moot court competitions.

Our students evolve into the professionals they envision themselves becoming through courses; hands-on experiences, such as in the Jacob Burns Community Legal Clinics, where they represent actual clients in real-life cases; in the Field Placement Program, where they earn academic credit through approved externships and co-requisite courses; and in various internal and external moot court competitions.

Through the Prisoner and Re-entry Clinic, under the direction of Professor Jessica Steinberg, our students have won two separate clemency cases that freed long-time prisoners.

Rudolph Norris, whose sentence was commuted after more than 20 years in prison, with Professor Steinberg.

Real-World Experience, Real-World Impact

Under faculty guidance, our students have argued before Supreme Court justices in moot court competitions; won immigration cases for those seeking asylum through our legal clinics; and served in externships through the Field Placement Program, gaining substantive legal experience in institutions and agencies in Washington, D.C., and New York.

JACOB BURNS COMMUNITY LEGAL CLINICS: Our clinics allow students to represent actual clients in real-life cases under faculty supervision. Current clinics include:

- Civil Access to Justice Clinic: Employment Law
- Civil Access to Justice Clinic: Family Law
- Civil Access to Justice Clinic: Medical Legal Partnership
- Civil and Human Rights Law Clinic
- Criminal Appeals and Post-Conviction Services
- Criminal Defense and Justice Clinic
- Domestic Violence Project
- Family Justice Litigation Clinic
- Health Rights Law Clinic
- Immigration Clinic
- Intellectual Property and Technology Law Clinic
- Prisoner and Re-entry Clinic
- Public Justice Advocacy Clinic
- Rising for Justice
- Small Business and Community Economic Development Clinic
- Vaccine Injury Litigation Clinic

FIELD PLACEMENT PROGRAM: Students earn academic credit through approved externships at places such as U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, U.S. Department of Justice, House and Senate Judiciary Committees, World Bank, National Wildlife Federation, and White House Office of Legal Counsel. In addition, students take a course related to their externship experiences. For instance, students who hold externships in government agencies take the course Public Interest Lawyering, which examines the roles and responsibilities of government and public affairs lawyers.

PUBLIC INTEREST AND PRO BONO: The Class of 2022 contributed more than 74,229 pro bono hours in projects such as the Washington Legal Clinic for the Homeless, Animal Welfare Project, and the Cancer Pro Bono Network, among others. Notably, GW Law allows students to begin pro bono work as soon as the second semester of their 1L year.

MOOT COURT COMPETITIONS: GW Law was ranked as the sixth best moot court program in the country for 2020-21 by the Blakeley Advocacy Institute. Over the past 14 years, GW Law's Van Vleck Constitutional Law Moot Court Competition has been presided over by Supreme Court Justices Samuel Alito (twice), Antonin Scalia, Elena Kagan, Sonia Sotomayor, Brett Kavanaugh, and Chief Justice John Roberts.

Enhance Your Study

GW IN NY: Upperlevel students whose studies have been focused in the area of business and finance law can participate in GW in New York. For one semester, students work, study, and live in New York, taking courses from prominent alumni practitioners in the field of business and finance law and benefitting from externships at organizations such as the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, U.S. Court of International Trade, and the Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association. Our New York alumni serve as individual mentors, as well.

STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS: With more than 60 student organizations, our students gain hands-on administrative and leadership experience. GW's Student Bar Association, which won the ABA's 2020 Dean Henry J. Ramsey, Jr. Diversity Award, the 2018 Membership and Activity Award, and was the ABA's 2015 National SBA of the Year, oversees the budgeting and administration for all student organizations, functioning as a small company with more than 110 members of its executive branch alone. A Front-Row Seat

GW Law in DC

GW Law is located across the street from the International Monetary Fund and World Bank; four blocks from the White House; two blocks from Big Law on K Street; three blocks from the U.S. Department of State; and a Metro ride away from the Supreme Court, the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, the Environmental Protection Agency, and a host of nongovernmental and policy agencies.

That proximity, along with the established networks of our faculty, administrators, career counselors, and alumni, means that our students have unprecedented access to externships year-round, as well as countless opportunities to interact with those who create and enact policy.

For example, GW Law's International and Comparative Law Program frequently hosts the State Department's Public International Advisory Committee Meetings, which are open to the public. More than 400 events are held on campus each year, bringing high-level officials and practitioners to campus. Our students benefit from the vast number of networking opportunities that these events provide.

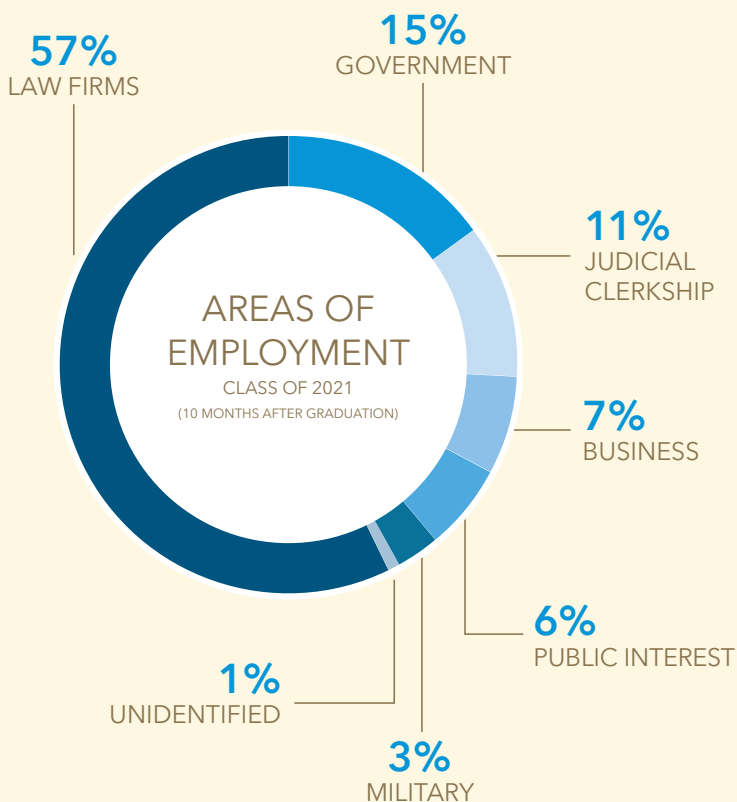

Building Your Career

Our Career Center assists students not only in finding jobs but in creating long-term career satisfaction. To achieve that end, the center is dedicated to helping each student develop a personalized career plan.

The Career Center has one of the largest legal career counseling teams in the country. Our career counselors collectively represent more than 80 years of experience in legal and counseling professions. The counselors, who are all trained, licensed attorneys, are assigned to each of the six first-year student sections collectively called the Inns of Court. Each counselor follows that cohort of students throughout the three or four years of law school, although students are free to meet with any counselor in the Career Center.

Our counselors have expertise in multiple areas of employment, including law firms, judicial clerkships, government agencies, nonprofit organizations, federal and state courts, and private sector employers.

As a result, our alumni hold clerkships; work at large, medium, and small law firms; serve in government positions; and work in international and domestic business ventures, among other positions. Each year, approximately 60 GW Law students secure clerkships with federal, state, and local judges immediately after graduation.

ALUMNI NETWORKING

With more than 32,000 alumni throughout the world and in every area of practice, the law school counts among its alumni several senators and executive cabinet officers, state and federal judges, and many prominent leaders in business, industry, and government.

MENTORSHIP

First-year students receive individual and group mentorship and benefit from weekly Inns of Court sessions on networking, informational interviews, and the job search process, among many other programs. In addition, second- and third-year students can be paired with alumni mentors who can help advise them along the path to success.

The Career Center supports students in a variety of ways:

- Individual Career Counseling, including basic tools preparation, employment-market insight, and personal interview preparation.
- Professional Development Programming
- Skills Training
- Programming Focused on Specific Practice Areas
- Online Career Resource Library
- Fall and Spring Job Recruitment Programs
- Job Postings
- Diversity Events and Programs
- Part-time Student Counseling and Programming
- Public Interest Job Fairs and Initiatives

Big Law on K Street, the World Bank and International Monetary Fund, the U.S. Department of Justice, and the U.S. Supreme Court are all an easy distance from GW Law.

“ We have an amazing legal research and writing curriculum (now incorporated into the Fundamentals of Lawyering). There are also the Writing Center and the Dean’s Fellows for added assistance. My experience really boosted my confidence and expanded my idea of the legal landscape. ”

A City of Surprises

Washington, DC

Another advantage of attending GW Law is participating in the life of the city. D.C. is a vibrant, multinational city of diverse treasures. The resonance of its history is everywhere. Our students frequently tell stories of going for a morning run on the National Mall and doing a double-take as they pass the Lincoln Memorial. There's an annual tradition during 1L orientation of organizing a softball game at the foot of the Washington Monument—such an ordinary event in such an extraordinary location.

D.C. is full of those moments. It offers a blend of American history, international flavor, and cultural activity that few cities can match. Its charming and varied neighborhoods, abundance of free museums, world-class entertainment and sports venues, and eclectic mix of restaurants provide variety and excitement for residents.

A National Law School with Global Reach

Regardless of where students choose to sit for the bar or practice law, GW Law offers the legal education and career services that assist them in meeting their goals. The law school curriculum focuses on federal common law, rather than limiting the emphasis to the laws of one particular state, so students leave GW Law with global legal knowledge that allows them to sit for the bar in any state.

In addition, the Career Center brings recruiters to campus from around the country to meet with our students. Each year, the center holds recruitment events in Philadelphia, Los Angeles,

New York, San Francisco, Miami, and Chicago, in addition to D.C. The center's job postings feature opportunities nationwide.

The law school's network of more than 32,000 alumni serves as an invaluable asset for our students. The Alumni Career Network puts current students and recent graduates in touch with alumni who can provide career advice and opportunities.

Our alumni practice law throughout the United States and in more than 20 countries around the world.
