I. DESCRIPTIONS OF SEMINARS AND COURSES COVERING “SELECTED TOPICS...TO BE ANNOUNCED AT THE TIME OF REGISTRATION”

The Law School Bulletin indicates that certain seminars and courses will cover “selected topics … to be announced at the time of registration.” The following paragraphs describe the coverage of seminars and courses of this type that will be offered in the Fall 2016 Semester. Please see the Law School Bulletin for the description of other seminars and courses. Enrollment in each seminar is limited. Enrollment in each course may be limited.

6264-10 Securities Law Seminar: Shareholder Power and Activism (2) L. Fairfax
This seminar will explore the practice and regulation of shareholder activism in public companies, with a particular focus on the recent surge in such activism as well as recent Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) initiatives aimed at supporting shareholders’ voting rights. The seminar will examine the different types of shareholders and entities engaged in activism including hedge funds, unions, pension funds, retail investors, and shareholder advisors. After highlighting shareholders’ rights and responsibilities in the corporation, the seminar will focus in detail on the ways in which shareholders exercise their voting power as well as the legal, economic, and practical impediments to shareholder voting and activism. The seminar will examine the history of shareholders’ attempts to gain access to the corporate proxy statement for purposes of nominating director candidates of their choice, as well as ways in which shareholders seek to use their vote to influence corporate affairs, including withhold the vote campaigns, proxy contests, majority voting, and efforts to declassify corporate boards. In addition, the seminar will analyze the regulation of shareholder proposals and the primary types of proposals shareholders advance. Grades in this seminar will be based on a combination of participation in class discussion and a research paper. Enrollment is limited. Prerequisite: Law 6250 (Corporations). (Research paper)

6351-20 Reading Group: Dissent and the Supreme Court (1) Marcus / Urofsky
A dissent on the nation’s highest court may be no more than an angry reaction to the majority or frustration that the rest of the court does not share the dissenter’s views. But in some cases the dissent is more than disagreement; it is part of a constitutional dialogue that may affect the immediate case or take years before the dissenting argument is accepted by the Court. It took over twenty years before Hugo L. Black’s dissent in Betts v. Brady (1942) became accepted in Gideon v. Wainwright (1963), but in every Sixth Amendment case that came up, the justices had to speak to the argument Black had made. In this seminar, we will look at the conversations that dissenters have with other members of the Court, the other branches of government, and the public, and examine in depth some of the iconic dissents. (Writing Assignments)

6379-20 Criminal Law & Procedure Seminar: Wrongful Convictions (2) Enzinna, George
Exonerations of the innocent force our criminal justice system to confront new and unsettling realities. They remind us that that system is only as good as the people and practices inhabiting it. They raise serious questions about its truthseeking abilities. And they compel us to ask what went wrong in these cases, what compensation is owed, and what reforms are due. This seminar will consider these questions. It will review the causes of wrongful convictions, and the jurisprudence that follows, with each session devoted to an intensive study of a particular facet of the topic. Students will be assigned each week to lead class discussions criticizing or defending particular judicial opinions or scholarly materials. The papers in this class cannot be used to fulfill the legal writing requirement. (Class participation and research paper)
6399-10 Constitutional Law Seminar: Leading Cases in Context (2) Maggs, Justice Thomas

Opinions in leading Supreme Court cases usually reveal only part of a complex story. Although they discuss the facts immediately leading to the litigation, they often do not fully expose the motivations of the litigants or the social and political context of legal controversies. The opinions also cannot describe the reactions to the Court's decisions or the decisions' subsequent influence. Discovery of additional facts about the context of a particular case often yields a deeper or different understanding of the Supreme Court’s actions. In this seminar, students will observe this phenomenon by studying a more complete story of a number of leading cases than is usually presented in Constitutional Law courses. The seminar will culminate with each student writing and presenting a thorough history of a Supreme Court decision not discussed in class. Prerequisites: Law 6214 & Law 6380. (Class participation, presentation, and research paper)

6411-11 Health Care Law Seminar: Traumatic Brain Injury (2) Kaplen

This seminar will examine the issues that confront attorneys in their representation of an individual with a traumatic brain injury, both in and out of the courtroom. The intertwined medical and legal issues related to brain injury and its consequences will also be studied. Topics relating to public perception of brain injury and implications for the legal profession, necessary areas of proof including the use of demonstrative evidence, expert witnesses, challenges to the admission of expert testimony, and trial practice skills in both the prosecution and defense will be discussed. Accessing government benefits and the legal implications of the concussion crisis in amateur and professional sports are other included topics. (Research paper)

6411-12 Health Care Law Seminar: Medical Device Law and Regulation (2) Kahan

This class will examine the laws and regulations governing the development and marketing of medical devices in the U.S. This class will focus on how the FDA approves medical devices, including novel technologies, the regulation of investigational devices, and the regulation of devices after approval. This class will also cover FDA authority over the promotion and advertising of devices post-approval and FDA tools for enforcing the device authorities, including recalls, seizures, injunctions, and criminal prosecutions. (Research Paper)

6411-20 Health Care Law Seminar: Antitrust in the Health Care Sector (2) Leibenluft

This seminar will address the application of antitrust to hospitals, physicians, health plans, and drug manufacturers; antitrust analysis of professional restraints, provider networks and managed care contracting, ACOs, joint ventures, hospital and health plan mergers, conduct of dominant firms, and pharmaceutical industry conduct that can deter generic entry; exemptions and immunities; practical issues for private or government lawyers who advise on or prosecute health antitrust matters; and, the policy challenges in applying antitrust in health care markets. The course is aimed at students who intend to practice antitrust law or work either in the government or private sector on health care issues. Prerequisite: Law 6402 or Law 6410 or permission of the instructor. (Research paper)

6441-10 Energy Law Seminar: Electricity Systems in Transition (2) Dobriansky

This seminar will use a comparative approach to examine how different countries are responding to the dramatic changes in the ways energy is generated and delivered, with particular focus on new energy markets, new technologies, and emerging policies that allow increasing interaction between utilities, customers and third-parties, tapping into distributed energy resources with the use of enabling smart grid and micro-grid capabilities to meet customer needs and modernize power systems. (Research paper)

6466-10 Environmental Law Seminar: Energy Commodities (2) Malyshev, Waldman

This seminar is at the intersection of U.S. federal regulation of physical commodity contracts (such as crude oil, natural gas, emissions and renewable certificates or bitcoin) and how these contracts are traded domestically and internationally. The seminar provides a comprehensive overview of commodities hedging and risk mitigation and looks into the regulatory response to the financial crisis of 2008. The seminar will explore who the market participants are and how they are regulated. It will trace the commoditization of environmental attributes and explore how they are used for renewable energy development and project finance. It will explore historic commodity manipulations from Enron to LIBOR. Business students also will benefit from this seminar. (Research paper)

6466-20 Environmental Law Seminar: Food Systems and Environmental Law (2) Johnson, S.
The relationship of food production and consumption on natural resources, and the application of environmental and related laws to farming and food systems. Topics include agricultural policy, organic and other certification regimes, genetically engineered crops, sustainability, biofuels and the impacts of food cultivation on water, air and climate change. (Research paper)

6496-10 Intellectual Property Law Seminar: Legislation (2) Mossinghoff, Oman
This seminar will examine legal, economic, political and technological forces that prompt Congress to enact or revise intellectual property laws, the complex legislative steps necessary to enact such laws, and their statutory interpretation after enactment. Topics will include specific examples of past congressional enactments, pending federal legislation, the need for future action by Congress, and the legislative process generally, including the role played by congressional staff, trade associations, public interest groups, and the expert government agencies. (Research paper)

6509-10 Government Contracts Seminar: Public Affairs and Foreign Affairs Outsourcing (2) Dickinson
This seminar will examine the legal and policy implications of the growing use of contractors to perform a range of military, security, intelligence and other foreign affairs functions. The seminar will focus on the impact of this privatization trend on core public values and the mechanisms of accountability and constraint used to protect these values. The public values under consideration will include human dignity, public participation, equality, efficiency, and transparency. Participants will assess a range of existing and possible accountability and constraint mechanisms, including contractual terms, bidding processes, contract management, accreditation, litigation (both criminal and civil), disclosure frameworks, and organizational structure and culture. Participants will also have the opportunity to study comparative models of accountability and constraint from other countries, such as Great Britain, Israel, and South Africa, as well as from the domestic context, including cases of health care and prison privatization at the state and local level. (Research paper)

6509-21 Government Contracts Seminar: Foreign Government Contracting (2) Yukins, Green A.
This seminar will examine many issues associated with the increase in public procurement being done across borders—whether through international aid assistance or foreign military sales, or direct purchases by foreign government. This new, highly globalized public procurement market presents special legal and policy issues, including export controls, anti-corruption requirements, and unique legal rules for certain types of foreign assistance. This course, co-taught by a co-director in the government contracts program and a senior member of the bar, offers an introduction to the practical and real-world challenges of transnational public procurement. (Research paper)

6509-22 Government Contracts Seminar: Procurement Reform (2) Yukins
This seminar offers a review of emerging issues in U.S. procurement law, using information technology procurement and other critical market sectors as a starting point for analysis; we will also be looking to international procurement law, as a comparative counter-example to U.S. law. Prerequisite or concurrent registration: Law 6500 or Law 6502, or permission of instructor. (Research paper)

6562-10 Public International Law Seminar: Arms Control (2) Carnahan, Youmans
This seminar will examine the underlying rationale behind various international arms control, counterterrorism and non-proliferation agreements to which the United States is a party, both strategic and conventional. Students will study the negotiations which brought these agreements into force, review their major provisions, and discuss issues involving the implementation of and compliance with these agreements. Federal implementing legislation will also be addressed, with emphasis on the Atomic Energy Act of 1954. Prerequisite or concurrent registration: Law 6520. (Research paper)

6592-10 Jurisprudence Seminar: “You Can’t Argue Like That” (2) Steinhardt
This seminar offers a case-based approach to arguments about the nature of law, authority, and persuasion. It is divided into three parts: (i) an examination of traditional and contemporary schools of jurisprudence (e.g., natural law, positivism, law and economics, feminist legal theory, legal realism, critical race theory), using cases as the primary authority rather than scholarly writings; (ii) analysis of certain identifiable and recurring types of legal arguments (e.g., reasoning by default, interpreting statutes and the common law, and the power of fallacies); and (iii) applying what we know (or think we know) about theories of law by applying them in particular settings, like international law, property, and punishment. Enrollment limited to 16 students. (Class participation, writing assignments, and research paper)

This seminar provides students with the knowledge and skills necessary to become effective practitioners in the fields of government oversight and internal investigations and examines the role of the Department of Homeland Security, Office of Inspector General in protecting national security. The seminar focuses heavily on Inspector General legal authorities, the report writing process, and effective interviewing techniques. This seminar also examines oversight mechanisms within the Department of Justice, the Department of Defense, and the Office of the Director of National Intelligence. (Research paper)

6872-22 National Security Law Seminar: Powers of War and Peace (2) Peirce
This is an advanced seminar designed to identify and analyze both historical and current national security legal questions focused on the powers of war and peace constitutionally vested in the President and Congress, together with the related role of the federal courts in the national security arena. Emphasis will be placed on applying pertinent constitutional and statutory provisions and federal judicial decisions to real-life and notional scenarios in order to define the relative roles of each branch and their separate but sometimes overlapping powers, including the tensions between the Executive and Congress and the role of the courts in resolving some of these competing perspectives. Careful analysis of constitutional text, statutes and court decisions, together with relevant historical foundations and commentary, will provide the basis for student-led seminar discussion focused on current real-world and notional scenarios. During the final session of the seminar, students will assume roles of legal counsel and Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and counsel from the Office of the Legal Adviser, Department of State, to address pivotal issues concerning the war powers of Congress and the President in the context of two crisis situations. Prerequisites or concurrent registration: Law 6870 or Law 6875 or an equivalent course with permission of the instructor. Previous courses on constitutional law are recommended but not required. (Research paper)

This course fulfills the Law School's Professional Responsibility and Ethics course requirement.

6218-16 Professional Responsibility & Ethics (2 or 3) Wilmarth
This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Fall 2016 semester. This specialized section of the required Professional Responsibility and Ethics course will focus on issues of professional responsibility and ethical conduct from the perspective of lawyers specializing in corporate and business law. This course fulfills the Law School's Professional Responsibility and Ethics course requirement. Although it is designed for students who are considering working as corporate and business attorneys at some point in their career, it may be of general interest to any student.

Like the traditional sections of the PRE course, this section will study the ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct and other core standards of professional responsibility. However, this section will evaluate many issues within a context that takes account of the multiple roles performed by corporate and business lawyers. Course materials and class discussions will address the professional responsibility and ethical challenges that often confront business lawyers, including issues of professional identity and conflicts of interest that arise from the representation of corporations and other business entities and their owners. The final grade will be based upon (1) class attendance and participation, and (2) a final examination.

The goal is for students to gain confidence in their lawyering and litigation strategy skills. This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Fall 2016 semester.

6652-14 Legal Drafting (Criminal Litigation) (2 or 3) Coates L.
This course focuses on drafting criminal litigation documents, including a “Gerstein,” an indictment, discovery and plea materials, a motion or opposition to a motion to suppress evidence, proposed jury voir dire, proposed jury instructions, and a sentencing memorandum. Students will learn to exercise effective drafting techniques and strategy while maintaining ethical standards. For several assignments, students will be asked to participate in an oral exercise that helps form the basis of the written assignment. This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Fall 2016 semester.

6652-15 Legal Drafting (Mergers & Acquisitions) (2 or 3) Mutryn
This section of legal drafting will focus on the legal concepts, current terms and conditions and applicable law related to acquisitions of private entities and the drafting and negotiation of the principal legal documents used in connection with such transactions. Prerequisite for J.D. students: Law 6250 or permission of the instructor. This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Fall 2016 semester.

6652-21 Legal Drafting (Transactional) (2 or 3) Villa
Students learn the fundamental skills necessary to draft transactional and litigation documents which are most commonly used by in house attorneys. This will include mastering basic drafting principles, discussing the business context giving rise to the need for particular documents, and developing the strategy for structuring and negotiating contracts. Students will also get practical application in the full cycle of the drafting process for transactional documents, such as contracts, licenses, and other agreements, as well as some litigation documents as well. Topics include planning and structuring a document, legal research strategies, the role of procedural rules, plain language initiatives, and ethical principles that affect the drafting process. For several assignments, students will be asked to participate in an oral exercise that helps form the basis of the written assignment. This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Fall 2016 semester.

6652-22 Legal Drafting (Transactional) (2 or 3) Minniti
This course focuses on the full cycle of drafting transactions documents, with a focus on common transactions in the sports industry. Students will master basic drafting principles, discuss the business context giving rise to the need for particular documents, and learn strategy for structuring and negotiating contracts. This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Fall 2016 semester.

6666-11 Research and Writing Fellow (Deans) (1 or 2) DeSanctis
This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Fall 2016 semester.

6666-12 Research and Writing Fellow (Writing) (1 or 2) Gambert
This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Fall 2016 semester.

6688-10 Field Placement (1, 2, 3 or 4) Tillipman
Students earn academic credit for externships with qualifying judicial, government, and non-profit (501(c)) organizations. Students may participate in the Field Placement Program after they have successfully completed the law school's full-time first-year curriculum. Students who have not completed the entire full-time first-year curriculum may be eligible to participate in the Program if they can demonstrate that their placement will provide sufficient contemporaneous training to ensure the quality of the student educational experience in the Field Placement Program. During the fall and spring semesters, the placement must be located in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area. Students may earn credit for externships outside of the D.C. metropolitan area, including international externships, during the summer session only. Students must complete two full academic years of law school prior to receiving credit for an international field placement. Students register for this course through the Field Placement Program (see Program portal page for deadlines and required forms). The assistant dean for field placement must approve the placements in order to finalize registration. Students enrolled in this course must fulfill a classroom component requirement by enrolling concurrently in Law 6469, 6669, 6670, 6671, 6672, 6674, or in another Law School course along with Law 6673, as determined by the assistant dean. Students who have already taken a corequisite course in conjunction with a previous placement (for which they earned Field Placement credit) may be eligible to waive the corequisite course requirement and participate in advanced field placement. All waiver requests must be approved by the assistant dean for field placement. Students participating in advanced field placement are required to complete reflective learning exercises under the supervision of a designated faculty member. Advanced field placement is not available to students seeking credit for international externships, regardless of any previous corequisite course(s) taken. Students may enroll concurrently in this course and any other clinical course only with the permission of both instructors. This course is graded on a CR/NC basis and requires students to complete 60 hours of work and 5 pages of original and substantive writing per credit. Students may earn up to 4 field placement credits per semester for a total of no more than 8 credits for this course in their degree program. Students participating in the Domestic Violence Project must register, through the Field Placement Program, for this course for 1 to 4 credits and enroll concurrently in Law 6674. Permission of the assistant dean for field placement is required prior to registration in this course and any corequisite courses. Additional information about the program, including a detailed description of program requirements, its registration process, and other policies and procedures is located in the Field Placement Student Handbook. Students are responsible for reading the handbook and complying with all program policies and procedures. If you have any questions regarding this requirement or about the Field Placement Program, please contact Nikki Keeley, Assistant Director for Field Placement, at nkeeley@law.gwu.edu.
