I. DESCRIPTIONS OF SEMINARS AND COURSES COVERING “SELECTED TOPICS…TO BE ANNOUNCED AT THE TIME OF REGISTRATION”

The Law School Bulletin indicates that certain seminars and courses will cover “selected topics … to be announced at the time of registration.” The following paragraphs describe the coverage of seminars and courses of this type that will be offered in the Spring 2016 Semester. Please see the Law School Bulletin for the description of other seminars and courses. Enrollment in each seminar is limited. Enrollment in each course may be limited.

6247-20 Selected Topics in Civil Procedure: Electronic Discovery and Evidence (1) Hirt
This course is intended to provide students with a solid grounding in one of the most important topics in federal and state civil litigation – the discovery and use at trial (or other evidentiary proceedings) of electronically-stored information (ESI). ESI is now ubiquitous in our society -used by business, government, nonprofit agencies and by individual users. There has been an explosion in the varieties of ESI, including websites, word processing documents, spreadsheets, e-mails, text messages, information stored on smart phones, or on “social media” sites such as Facebook and LinkedIn, etc. Students will learn about how ESI has changed litigation and how practitioners and judges are applying discovery and case management rules and practices to ESI issues. There are no prerequisites for this course. Technical proficiency in computers or information science is not a prerequisite to this course. This course is graded on a CR/NC basis. (Writing assignments)

6247-40 Selected Topics in Civil Procedure: Advanced Pre-Trial Advocacy (3) A. Robinson, Keenan, Rainey Z
Pre-trial and trial techniques of civil discovery and motions practice by role-playing in simulated cases. The class is divided into experienced “law firms” that represent clients in cases at the pre-trial and trial stage. Therefore, the course will provide an advanced experience in litigation at both the pre-trial and trial stages. Students are required to represent clients at pre-trial conferences (preliminary and final), mediations, arbitrations, and conduct extensive, complex discovery, including conduct of depositions (equivalent of six weeks), argument on motions (related to pleadings, summary judgment, and injunctions), discovery motions to compel or sanction, preparation and service of interrogatories, requests for production, requests for admissions, and motions for physical and mental examinations. Moreover, students will receive advanced training in all phases of trial, including trial arguments, examination of lay and expert witnesses, development and use of demonstrative and tangible evidence, and advanced courtroom technology. The course concludes with a multi-day mock trial by judge and/or jury. Prerequisite: Law 6643 (Pre-Trial Advocacy). (Simulation and papers) (Skills).

6262-10 Corporation Law Seminar: The Law and Business of Social Enterprise (2) Esposito
General introduction to the legal, regulatory, and business aspects of social enterprise – business ventures that simultaneously seek to produce profit alongside positive social and environmental impacts. Topics will include: corporate social responsibility; social entrepreneurship; domestic and foreign corporate forms for social enterprise, such as the benefit corporation; tax and regulatory regimes for social enterprise; socially responsible investing; impact investing; social and environmental impact metrics and ratings systems; and pay-for-success/social impact bonds. (Research paper and class presentation)

6264-10 Securities Law Seminar: Shareholder Power and Activism (2) L. Fairfax
This seminar will explore the practice and regulation of shareholder activism in public companies, with a particular focus on the recent surge in such activism as well as recent Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) initiatives aimed at supporting shareholders’ voting rights. The seminar will examine the different types of shareholders and entities engaged in activism including hedge funds, unions, pension funds, retail investors, and shareholder advisors. After highlighting shareholders’ rights and responsibilities in the corporation, the seminar will focus in detail on the ways in which shareholders exercise their voting power as well as the legal, economic, and practical impediments to shareholder voting and activism. The seminar will examine the history of shareholders’ attempts to gain access to the corporate proxy statement for purposes of nominating director candidates of their choice, as well as ways in which shareholders seek to use their vote to influence corporate affairs, including withhold the vote campaigns, proxy contests, majority voting, and efforts to declassify corporate boards. In addition, the seminar will analyze the regulation of shareholder proposals and the primary types of proposals shareholders advance. Grades in this seminar will be based on a combination of participation in class discussion and a research paper. Enrollment is limited. Prerequisite: Law 6250 (Corporations). (Research paper)

6351-20 Reading Group: Open Government Data (1) Zvenyach
Federal, state, and local governments have increasingly adopted open-data policies (e.g., OMB Memorandum M-10-06), created new open-data portals (e.g., data.gov), and established new open-data offices (Chief Data Officers, Chief Innovation Officers, etc.), all with an eye toward promoting open government data. Students will discuss the implications of open data for personal privacy and on civic society, and examine the effect that open data may have on the practice of law. This course is graded on a CR/NC basis. (Writing assignments)

6352-10 Family Law Seminar: Juvenile Justice (2) Ridder
Study of the legal and philosophical bases for a separate jurisdiction of the juvenile court system will be made by analyzing the intake, adjudication, and dispositional phases of juvenile cases. There are no prerequisites for this seminar. (Research paper)

6379-11 Criminal Law and Procedure Seminar: Criminal Justice Reform and The Wire (2) R. Fairfax
This seminar will consider the merits of, and prospects for, criminal justice reform in the United States. Topics will include legal, social, moral, and political perspectives on the modern criminal justice system and will be framed by selected readings and episodes of David Simon’s critically acclaimed HBO series The Wire. Prerequisite: Law 6360 (Criminal Procedure) or Law 6362 (Adjudicatory Criminal Procedure). (Mandatory class attendance and participation, periodic writing assignments, Note: The first paper will be due on Monday, January 11, 2016)

6379-12 Criminal Law and Procedure Seminar: Policing, Crime, and Democracy (2) Braman
This seminar will explore the dilemma of modern policing. The dilemma can be described fairly succinctly: on the one hand, the New Policing Model is viewed as responsible for a significant amount of the decline in crime across the country over the last twenty years; on the other hand, modern policing is increasingly viewed as contributing to the explosive growth of the incarceration and criminal justice-system involvement of low-income minority men. Are the police helping the residents of high crime neighborhoods by reducing crime, or are they furthering a cycle of misery and impoverishment brought about by constant harassment and mass-incarceration? The seminar will review the development of the New Policing model, evaluations of the impact of policing on the communities it is intended to protect, and efforts to constrain police conduct through litigation and extra-judicial means. Students will write four short “idea papers” in response to the reading materials over the course of the semester. Grades will be based on the papers and class participation. (Writing assignments and class participation)

6379-13 Criminal Law Procedure Seminar: The Death Penalty (2) Maher
This seminar is about the death penalty. We will explore the impact that racism, poverty, and ineffective legal representation has in capital cases. Primarily, however, the course is about the law; the rules and procedures that govern who is and is not subject to the death penalty; and what principles and measures the law invokes to distinguish death-worthy cases from cases where the sanction of death would be unlawful. We will also consider moral and philosophical questions about the death penalty to the extent that such questions affect or influence legal thought and policy, and explore some emerging issues implicated by recent death penalty jurisprudence. (Research paper)

6379-14 Criminal Law and Procedure Seminar: DC Crime Policy Reform (2) Braman
A two credit seminar devoted to writing policy memos on specific topics related to crime reduction for the DC Council. Students will pursue three objectives in the course: (1) gaining a basic understanding the current state of criminal justice policy in the United States and the District, including both history and theory; (2) using evidence as the basis of policy recommendations, and (3) learning to write a policy memo aimed at effecting legislative change. Each week will focus on a different topic, with the last three weeks devoted to presentations of student policy memoranda. Students will be evaluated based on their class participation and their drafting of a policy memorandum directed to the Council of the District of Columbia. (Writing assignments and class participation)

6379-15 Criminal Law and Procedure Seminar: The Police (2) Cheh
Examination of the training, tactics, and supervision of police departments. Topics such as historical and comparative perspectives on organized police forces; styles of policing including "conventional" policing, community policing, and the "militarization" of police forces; police handling of protests and demonstrations; police engagement with particular communities such as persons with mental illness and victims of domestic violence; the problem of police violence, and supervision of police through internal rules, civil and criminal lawsuits, and legislative oversight. Enrollment is limited. (Research paper and class presentations)

6379-20 Criminal Law and Procedure Seminar: Anatomy of a Homicide (2) Canan
This seminar will use homicide cases as a model to explore various advanced legal and ethical issues that arise during the investigation, trial and sentencing phases of a criminal case. Homicide cases present many challenging and emotionally charged issues that arise in the criminal justice system. We will work with actual fact patterns during the semester, and each week students will be assigned to consider issues from a prosecutorial or defense perspective. The seminar will cover topics ranging from current controversies over the use of forensic evidence to evidentiary issues at trial to sentencing and post-conviction relief. We also plan to draw upon the wealth of criminal justice experts available in this area and occasionally feature guest speakers from law enforcement, the defense bar, prosecutors, and the judiciary. Law 6360 (Criminal Procedure) is a prerequisite for this course. (Research paper)

6399-10 Constitutional Law Seminar: Religion and the Law: Contemporary Issues (2) Mach
This seminar will take an in-depth approach to religion and the law, focusing initially on the competing historical and modern interpretations of the First Amendment’s Religion Clauses. Against that backdrop, the course will trace the evolution of religion-law doctrine, using both foundational cases and contemporary controversies to explore a number of recurring themes and issues, including, e.g., financial aid to religious institutions; religious exercise and expression; government promotion of religious messages and displays; religion in the public schools; and religious exemptions and accommodations. Prerequisite: Law 6380 (Constitutional Law II) or permission of the instructor. (Research paper)

6411-11 Health Care Law Seminar: Health Care Fraud and Abuse (2) Lynch
This seminar will expose students to the prevailing legal and strategic issues relating to prosecuting and defending against alleged misconduct within the United States health care system. This seminar will focus on health care fraud cases involving many different provider types, including hospitals, physician practices, nursing homes, and pharmaceutical and medical device manufacturing companies. The readings will cover the essential features of the major statutes in the area, principally those dealing with false claims, kick-backs and self-referrals. (Research paper)

6411-12 Health Care Law Seminar: Affordable Care Act (2) Rosenbaum
This seminar offers students an immersion into the major aspects of the Affordable Care Act (ACA) and the course of ACA implementation. The seminar is intended for students who have taken the four-credit introductory course: Law 6410 (Health Care Law). It offers an in-depth exploration of a number of the ACA’s most important legal elements: the individual duty to maintain health insurance; access to affordable health insurance coverage; health insurance coverage design; regulation of the health insurance market; the creation of a new insurance marketplace (exchanges); the regulation of health care practice through the use of payment incentives; the use of law to set national standards in health care quality; obligations of nonprofit hospitals seeking federal tax-exempt status; and private and government enforcement of the ACA’s standards. (Research paper)
6426-11 Public Law Seminar: Elections (2) Overton
This seminar will explore and analyze current election issues, such as voter registration, voter identification requirements, voter challenges, overseas and military voting, early voting and absentee voting, voting machines, deceptive practices, and recounts. (Research paper)

6426-14 Public Law Seminar: Telecommunication and Technology Policy Advocacy* (2) Goodfriend
This seminar will examine the legislative, administrative, and regulatory policy-making process in technology and telecommunications. Using case studies in copyright, privacy, broadband, spectrum, and media, students will learn how Congress, the White House, executive agencies and independent agencies shape policy directly impacting the technology and telecommunications sectors and how politics, press, social media, and grassroots advocacy impact governmental decision-making. (Research paper)

*Satisfactory participation in this course will give students a preference for the following opportunities: (a) four summer paid ($4000) internships for rising 3Ls, and (b) two, two-year paid fellowships ($65,000 per year plus benefits) for May 2016 GW Law graduates. These opportunities will be at Public Knowledge, www.publicknowledge.org or another comparable advocacy organization.

6427-10 Selected Topics in Public Law: The Art of Legal Persuasion (2) Selmi
This course will concentrate on, and develop, the analytical skills critical to successful lawyering. Much of the work of a lawyer is designed to persuade and that is true whether the focus is on a court, an opposing party, a client or a legislature. Persuasion, in turn, requires an ability to assess the merits of arguments, being able to discern a good from a weak argument, and knowing what makes an argument strong. To get at these issues, to develop what might be called a “lawyer’s argument toolkit,” we will read and analyze materials relating to recent cases from all court levels (District, Appellate and Supreme Court). This will include briefs, transcripts, oral arguments and cases, as well as legal portrayals in film and television. There will be additional readings and students will be evaluated based on a series of papers and class participation. (Writing assignments and class participation)

6466-11 Environmental Law Seminar (Energy Law): The U.S. Electric System and Sustainability (2) Attanasio
Advanced level seminar addressing law and policy pertinent to the current transition of the U.S. electric system in response to: sustainability policies and laws, including renewable energy, energy efficiency and conservation; reliability mandates and resiliency concerns; new and evolving technologies such as distributed energy resources, storage and microgrids; and the changing roles of market participants, including consumer participation through demand side management and demand response. Emphasis is on the transition to sustainability, viewed in the larger context of embedded infrastructure, financial and operational considerations, political limitations and energy justice. (Research paper and class participation)

6466-13 Environmental Law Seminar (Energy Law): Electric and Natural Gas Regulation (2) Sheridan, Yaffe
The primary objective of this seminar is to provide an in-depth understanding of the fundamental principles governing regulation of the electric and natural gas industries. The focus of the course will be on federal regulation, primarily by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, but the intersection of federal regulation and the different ways in which fundamental regulatory concepts are applied by state regulatory bodies will be addressed. Approximately half of the course will be focused on either fundamental concepts of regulation, such as the meaning of the public interest, conventional and market-based ratemaking, principles governing the review and approval of new utility facilities, as well as fundamental concepts of practice before regulatory agencies, including enforcement and administrative/agency process. The remainder of the seminar will focus on how these fundamental regulatory concepts, precedent and practice come to bear on specific topics of current interest, such as the intersection of climate regulation and utility regulation, the prospects for continued operation of existing nuclear generation in a market environment, impact of shale gas development on the natural gas and electric generation industries, fundamental principles of how regulation engages renewable generation, distributed generation and efficiency, electric markets and regional transmission organizations and the issues involved in the state’s effort to turn distributed energy generation on the distribution grid into a wholesale power resource. We expect to focus on issues of jurisdiction as among state and federal regulatory agencies, legislative and administrative policy considerations as they arise in or around the regulatory process and the concerns of how markets and regulation interact. Those students who have taken administrative law and a survey energy law course may get more out of this seminar than those who have not. (Research paper and class participation)

6496-11 Intellectual Property Law Seminar: Digital Copyright (2) Nunziato
This seminar focuses on digital copyright issues and in particular on (1) Chapter 12 of the Digital Millennium Copyright Act (DMCA), involving the protections afforded to copyright owners for their use of self-help technological measures (like encryption controls) to safeguard access to and copying of their works, and (2)
Section 512 of the DMCA, which limits the liability of internet service providers for acts of copyright infringement engaged in by their subscribers. We will examine the traditional balance between copyright owners’ rights and the privileges enjoyed by members of the public under the fair use doctrine and the First Amendment, and how this balance has been altered by the passage of the DMCA. We will also consider other means to protect the public domain and the privilege traditionally enjoyed by members of the public to make use of creative works.
Students are expected to write research papers of publishable quality and present their papers to the class.
(Research paper)

6496-12 Intellectual Property Law Seminar: Multinational Protection of Intellectual Property (2)
Mossinghoff, Oman
International protection of intellectual property under the various treaties, including the Paris Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property, the Berne Convention for the Protection of Literary and Artistic Works, the WIPO Internet treaties, and the Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property (the TRIPs Agreement), and the role of national governments and multinational organizations, such as the United Nations, the World Intellectual Property organization (WIPO), and the World Trade Organization (WTO), in the enforcement of patents, copyrights, trade secrets, and trademarks. Also discussed are the Patent and Trademark Office, the Copyright Office, the United States Trade Representative, the International Trade Commission, and the U.S. Department of State, and the role those agencies play in the formulation of international intellectual property standards and the global enforcement of those standards. Recommended prerequisites: Law 6470 (Intellectual Property), Law 6471 (Patent Law), Law 6472 (Copyright Law), or Law 6474 (Trademark Law and Unfair Competition). (Research paper)

Selected issues of current importance in the entertainment industry, including the YouTube case, the Cablevision case, the Grokster case, the Copyright Royalty Board decisions, Orphan Works, the Copyleft-Copyright debate, Internet piracy, media consolidation, music licensing reform, and the role of the lawyer in the constantly evolving entertainment industry. Each student will prepare a paper of publishable quality and will be required to present and defend their topic before the class. Prerequisite: Law 6472 (Copyright Law) or Law 6475 (Entertainment Law). (Research paper)

6497-10 Selected Topics in Intellectual Property Law: USPTO Post-Grant Patent Proceedings (2) Laurence, McKeown
This course covers all post-grant proceedings conducted before the Patent Office including inter partes reviews, post-grant reviews, covered business method reviews, reexaminations, reissues, interferences, derivative proceedings, and supplemental examinations. Differences between these administrative proceedings and litigation are studied as well as their interplay. The course also explores the legislative evolution that lead to the development of review proceedings and compares them with similar European proceedings. Prerequisite: Law 6471 (Patent Law) or permission of the instructors. (Examination)
6509-10 Government Contracts Seminar: Public Affairs and Foreign Affairs Outsourcing (2) Dickinson
This seminar will examine the legal and policy implications of the growing use of contractors to perform a range of military, security, intelligence and other foreign affairs functions. The seminar will focus on the impact of this privatization trend on core public values and the mechanisms of accountability and constraint used to protect these values. The public values under consideration will include human dignity, public participation, equality, efficiency, and transparency. Participants will assess a range of existing and possible accountability and constraint mechanisms, including contractual terms, bidding processes, contract management, accreditation, litigation (both criminal and civil), disclosure frameworks, and organizational structure and culture. Participants will also have the opportunity to study comparative models of accountability and constraint from other countries, such as Great Britain, Israel, and South Africa, as well as from the domestic context, including cases of health care and prison privatization at the state and local level. (Research paper)

6509-21 Government Contracts Seminar: State and Local Procurement (2) Yukins
This seminar will cover state and local procurement in the United States, drawing on the Model Procurement Code and other leading state and local models. State and local procurement markets – long the forgotten stepchildren of U.S. procurement law – are rapidly growing in prominence and importance. The seminar will give students a solid grounding in common procurement methods, and solutions, used in state and local governments, and will compare those to federal procurement systems. The seminar will assess why federal and state procurement legal systems have evolved with so little interaction, and will ask whether we should do a better job of bringing them more in line with one another, and, if so, how. In examining why procurement law regimes in the United States are not better integrated, the seminar will look to European and other foreign models of integration and harmonization, and to the role of grants in integrating the federal government into state procurement systems. Enrollment is limited. (Mid-term examination and 20-page research paper)

The federal government spends billions of dollars each year to carry out various public purposes through the federal grant-making process. This seminar will focus on the breadth of legal issues that arise throughout the lifecycle of federal grants, including: formation issues, administration issues, disputes and audits, and close-out. Significant differences from federal contracting/procurements will be highlighted throughout the course. (Research paper)

6562-11 Public International Law Seminar: Codifying International Law (2) Murphy
The objective of this seminar is to develop the student’s ability to engage in research, analysis, and writing on a discrete and timely topic of international law. To do so, the seminar focuses on “codifying international law,” meaning the advancement of our understanding and practical application of international law by developing a treaty or other instrument that restates existing international law or, as needed, progressively develops international law. Students will examine the work product of the U.N. International Law Commission (ILC), a body of thirty-four legal experts elected from around the world by the U.N. General Assembly, that has been codifying and progressively developing international law for the past seventy years. This seminar will use the current topics under study at the ILC as a means for discussing and critiquing contemporary codification of international law; the student’s paper will focus on an aspect of one of the ILC’s topics. Successful papers will be provided to the ILC member associated with the relevant topic. Prerequisite: Law 6520 (International Law) or permission of the instructor. Students wishing to refresh their understanding of this field may wish to consult their textbook and notes for Law 6520 or a basic treatise in the field, such as Sean D. Murphy, Principles of International Law (2nd edition, 2012). (Research paper)

6562-12 Public International Law Seminar: Post-Conflict Justice (2) Dickinson
This course focuses on the processes of accountability and reconciliation that societies have adopted to address periods of massive human rights abuses committed in the past. South Africa’s Truth and Reconciliation Commission captivated not only South Africa but much of the world. Yet South Africa is only one of many countries that, after making the transition from a repressive regime to a more open and participatory form of government, has deliberately adopted a variety of legal and political mechanisms to confront the past. We will also explore a range of approaches that countries have adopted, including truth commissions, criminal trials, and civil compensation. And we will discuss the role that the international community has played through international criminal justice institutions and other means. Prerequisite: Law 6520 (International Law) or permission of the instructor. (Research paper)

6564-20 International Business Transactions Seminar: Settlement of International Economic Disputes (2)

Alexandrov

This seminar will focus on institutions and mechanisms for the settlement of international economic disputes. We will discuss the nature of such disputes and will seek to define the variables that affect their settlement. This model of analysis will be applied to institutions and mechanisms such as the GATT/WTO, the NAFTA, investment dispute settlement mechanisms, disputes in and with the European Communities, etc. We will identify the differences between the various dispute settlement mechanisms, reflecting the different nature of the disputes they are designed to settle. This seminar will analyze the elements of the dispute settlement process (e.g., parties, procedure, remedies, enforcement, etc.) and how they vary in each dispute settlement mechanism. (Research paper)

6565-10 Comparative Law Seminar: Comparative Criminal Justice (3)

Lerner

This seminar compares criminal justice in common law countries and civil law countries. It explores the profound differences between adversarial and inquisitorial systems. Understanding these differences is becoming increasingly important because of international tribunals and transnational prosecutions. Key differences include the role of judges, jurors, police, prosecutors, and defense counsel; and methods of investigation, interrogation, charging, plea-bargaining, conduct of trial, sentencing, appeal, and imprisonment. Civil law countries examined include France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Russia, and Japan; common law countries include the U.S., U.K., Canada, and Australia. The seminar also examines differences among common law countries, efforts by civil law countries to adopt adversarial features, and transnational criminal law enforcement. (Research paper)

6872-11 National Security Law Seminar: Autonomous Fighting Vehicles (2)

E. Wallach

This seminar will examine the legal issues of deployment of fully autonomous fighting vehicles in international armed conflicts. The seminar will focus on defining autonomy, the varying combat environment for fully autonomous weapons systems, the general law governing means and methods of warfare, the law of command responsibility, the blending of means and methods when weapons are warriors, why command responsibility increases when AFVs are deployed, an economic analysis of legal responsibility for deployment of AFVs, and the legal risks and rewards of deploying AFVs. Guest speakers will include military and civilian experts in those areas. (Research paper)

6872-12 National Security Law Seminar: Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act Seminar (2)

Bartee-Robertson

This seminar will be an in-depth study of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) and how the law has evolved over the past 40 years into the current legal framework utilized by the National Security community today. After completing this course students will fully understand the various provisions of FISA and its amendments, be able to identify the circumstances for pursuing a FISA warrant, discern the specific provision of FISA that applies to a set of circumstances and articulate the correct requirements for an application to the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court. They will also understand the significance of balancing National Security interests with the US citizen’s privacy rights. Students must have one of the following courses as a prerequisite before taking this course Law 6870 (National Security Law); Law 6878 (Intelligence Law); or Law 6875 (Counterterrorism Law) prior to enrolling in this course. Student may be able to take this course in conjunction with one of the above courses with professor’s approval. (Research Paper)
II. REVISIONS TO COURSE DESCRIPTIONS IN THE BULLETIN

6218-11 Professional Responsibility & Ethics (2 or 3) Simmons (TBA)
This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Spring 2016 semester.

6218-12 Professional Responsibility & Ethics (2 or 3) C. Lee
This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Spring 2016 semester.

6218-13 Professional Responsibility & Ethics (2 or 3) Fairfax R
This course will be offered for 2 credits in the Spring 2016 semester. This specialized section of the required Professional Responsibility and Ethics course will focus on issues of professional responsibility and ethical conduct in the context of the criminal advocacy. This course fulfills the Law School's Professional Responsibility and Ethics course requirement. Although it is designed for students who are considering working as prosecutors or criminal defense attorneys (or handling criminal cases on a pro bono basis) at some point in their career, it may be of general interest to any student.

Like the traditional sections of the PRE course, this section will engage with the ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct and other core standards of professional responsibility. However, this section will take up many of the issues through the lens of the prosecution and defense functions. Course materials and discussion will grapple with the professional responsibility and ethical challenges particularly facing prosecutors and criminal defense attorneys and will explore issues of professional identity and norms within criminal advocacy. The final grade will be based upon: (1) class attendance and preparation; and (2) a final examination.

6230-11 Evidence (3 or 4) Saltzburg
This course will be offered for 3 credits in the Spring 2016 semester.

6230-12 Evidence (3 or 4) Carter
This course will be offered for 4 credits in the Spring 2016 semester.

6230-13 Evidence (3 or 4) Kirkpatrick
This course will be offered for 3 credits in the Spring 2016 semester.

6231-10 Advanced Evidence Seminar (2) Kirkpatrick
The pre-requisite course for this course is LAW 6230 (Evidence).

6232-10 Federal Courts (3 or 4) B. Clark
This course will be offered for 4 credits in the Spring 2016 semester.

6246-10 Appellate Practice (2) Effron, Vuono
The Appellate Practice course will include writing assignments and projects that will focus on a real case currently pending in an appellate court. Early in the semester, the class will engage in a small group project to explore the tactical and strategic choices faced by counsel in filing appellate briefs and related documents. In the mid-semester writing assignment, students will draft a bench memo utilizing the format commonly used by judicial clerks to prepare judges for oral argument. Later in the semester, students will participate as both counsel and judges in an oral argument exercise. In the final writing assignment, students will draft a judicial opinion based upon the issues developed during the semester. The course is designed for students interested in appellate practice and judicial clerkships, as well as students generally interested in the skills associated with legal writing, research, advocacy, and advice. (Writing assignments and oral argument) (Skills)
6247-20 Selected Topics in Civil Procedure (Electronic Discovery and Evidence) (1, 2, or 3) Hirt
